Cablevision Inc. pleads its case

The question of a rate increase for Cablevision Inc. will be taken up by the Sedalia City Council at a meeting Jan. 30, the council decided in a special session Tuesday night. No action, however, will be taken until the next regular council meeting Feb. 3.

Local Cablevision manager Lynn Harrison Tuesday submitted to the council a formal application for a rate increase. He said the increase must be more than the current $5.90 monthly rate in order for the company to continue service here.

Last month the state Supreme Court ruled in favor of the city in Cablevision's civil suit challenging the city's authority to regulate cable television rates.

In July, 1971, Cablevision requested a $1 rate increase from $4.90 to $5.90, but this was denied by the council. Cablevision, however, in August, 1971, increased its rates and put the additional $1 in an escrow account at Third National Bank.

Harrison told the council that as of last October, the average monthly rate for cablevision systems in Missouri was $6.02. Since then, Harrison said, other applications have been filed by CATV companies and the average rate is now probably higher.

The Federal Communication Commission has said Cablevision must improve its equipment to offer better service by March 1, 1977, Harrison said, and these technical improvements will require additional funds.

"We are not making any money today at $5.90 (per customer). We must have this rate increase," Harrison told the council.

Harrison said the company this past year lost $5,000 a month. The attorney for Cablevision Inc., James Buckley, added that with a 12 per cent inflation rate Cablevision Inc. is still, in effect, receiving the same rate as in 1971.

Buckley told the council it could examine the economic conditions of the company by selecting any local accounting firm to audit Cablevision's books, at the expense of the company.

Harrison told the council that refund checks of escrow money probably would be mailed to past and present customers "after this week," but gave no specific date.

"We have a computer readout we are checking by hand for accuracy in figures. This should take the rest of the week and then the checks should be in the mail," Harrison said.

Mayor Jerry Jones asked Harrison what the company plans to do about refunds for customers who cannot be located.

Buckley answered Jones by saying no real solution to the problem has been found. He said there will be some former customers the company will not be able to find. He suggested that notices may be published in The Democrat-Capitol telling people that funds are available.

Harrison said since 1971 there has been a net gain of 600 customers for Cablevision in

Use computers

New scheduling plan approved

The Board of Education voted Tuesday night to initiate the use of computers in scheduling classes for Smith-Cotton High School.

Although Dr. Allen Henningsen, superintendent of schools, recommended against computer usage "because of finances," the board voted to schedule classes for the semester beginning next September through Litton Automotive Business Systems, Kansas City.

This service will cost the board about $1.51 per student, or a total of about $2,567.

Smith-Cotton principal Ken Keithly told the board a computerized scheduling system will cut down on some paperwork.

Keithly, who worked with computer operations for both scheduling and grade reporting as principal at Lamar, Mo., said the computer system will provide more accuracy in scheduling classes. He also pointed out that hand scheduling means pre-enrollment must be started earlier than with computer scheduling. He said scheduling data will be sent out of town to be processed by computer.

The board also amended its budget to allow for additional money received from the state intangibles tax and textbook fund.

Henningsen said the board originally approved its budget for an anticipated $101,000 in intangibles taxes. However, an additional $28,975 was received. Under the textbook fund, the board anticipated about $68,168, but received an additional $3,859.

The board amended its budget to put an additional $2,520 into funds for instructional materials and supplies at Hubbard School (or approximately $14 per student) and an additional $720 for athletic supplies at the junior high school.

The board also gave school district administrators authority to change the purchase date of a house at 915 South Lamine if, after examining the building, administrators feel the house could be used immediately.

The board previously made an agreement with Mrs. C. F. Scotten, owner, to purchase the building April 1. Mrs. Scotten recently requested that the purchase date be moved to Feb. 1 because tenants in the building planned to move. The agreement with Mrs. Scotten was made for $10,500.

Henningsen said if the building could not be used effectively enough to warrant additional expenses that immediate ownership of the building would incur. Mrs. Scotten would be held to the original April 1 contract agreement.

In other business, the board discussed an evaluation of the school system's student population in an attempt to remedy the problem of crowded classrooms at Mark Twin Elementary School.

The board decided against realignment of the student population for next September, due to recently approved federal anti-busing legislation.

Henningsen said the board "can't make a partial realignment and do any good for the district. When federal guidelines (regarding anti-busing) are finalized, then we can take a major look at our geographic alignment and develop a long-range plan that will stand for several years."

He added, "We don't know what's going to be mandated to us from the feds in the next six months."

Henningsen told the board that filing dates for election of board members in the April 1 election will be the first Monday through the last Friday in February.

He also told the board he recently attended a workshop for school superintendents in Mexico, Mo., regarding the state's new campaign finance and disclosure law.

He said two "loopholes" which might eliminate the complicated filing procedure required by the law include: a write-in vote for board members, or, if no one files for the board, the board could appoint its new members.

In other discussion, board member Dr. C. A. Kirkpatrick pointed out that more than $100 was spent by the board to send Christmas cards to all school system employees. The cards cost the board $50 in postage alone, he said.

Mrs. Jean Hausam, board member, said she was in favor of sending cards as a public relations gesture to school system personnel.

The board, however, voted 4-2 to discontinue

Deadline for health center is extended

The deadline for congressional action to be taken on President Ford's Nov. 26 executive order impounding federal Hill-Burton funds which would help finance the proposed Pettis County health building has been extended to Feb. 28, it was announced Wednesday.

It was originally reported the deadline for congressional response would be Jan. 19. However, because of Christmas vacation, it was decided that the deadline would be at the end of a 45-day period beginning Jan. 15, one day after the new congress convened.

Roger Garlich, chairman of the Pettis County Nursing Service Advisory Council, was recently advised of the deadline-extension decision by Rep. William Randall and Sen. Stuart Symington.

If congress fails to act on the order, the legislators explained, the money will be required to be allocated. The other two actions possible, they said, would be for congress to approve the President's request or pass their own bill which could possibly rescind the executive request before the expiration of the 45-day deadline.

In his letter, Garlich said, Randall pledged full support of the local project, writing "I am deeply sympathetic to the need of ... a health center program. I will certainly cooperate wholeheartedly with the city of Sedalia in trying to prevent the administration's proposed impoundment of these important monies."

Sen. Symington, while not specifying support for the local proposal, indicated he will strongly consider the location situation before making a decision on the matter, Garlich indicated.

Garlich added that preliminary work on the project, including the drawing-up of blueprints for the building, is nearing completion. "As soon as we get the go-ahead, we'll be ready to start," he said. "We'll be set to let the bids and get going."

Browder is honored

Harry Browder

Harry Browder, 710 North Missouri, Smith-Cotton High School guidance director and school district federal programming director, Wednesday morning received the Central Missouri Educator of the Year award in ceremonies at Central Missouri State University, Warrensburg.

Browder has been employed by the district since 1954, first serving as a social studies instructor at Hubbard School.

In 1956, he was named assistant principal and counselor at Hubbard and served in those capacities until being named guidance director at Smith-Cotton in 1967.

He is currently is serving as third vice-president of the Missouri State Teacher's Association.

Board action puts end to construction dispute

The Sedalia Board of Education Tuesday night approved a resolution which, in effect, ends a dispute of nearly two years with the Don "L" Bron Construction Co. over completion of the Sedalia Junior High School building.

The board issued a statement through architect Don Buller, closing negotiations with Bron over completion of the total building project, except for any guarantees on completed work.

Dr. Allan Henningsen, superintendent of schools, said Bron's attorney contacted Buller, of Sammons and Buller Architects, and requested a dollar figure from the board for releasing the Kansas City firm from further remedial work on the building.

The board decided to release Bron Construction from further such work and keep $3,475.60 it had been withholding for uncompleted work.

However, Henningsen pointed out that there is some uncompleted work remaining on the north end of the building. The board decided to bear the cost of that work if Dugger Construction Co., which was subcontracted by Bron, does not finish it. Henningsen said it would cost the board about $900 to pay for those repairs. He said if the board has to pay for the work it "will realize only about $2,575" from the original $3,475 figure.

The board's action was spurred by the death of Bron last week, apparently from a heart attack. Because the company was "essentially a one-man operation," Henningsen said further action against the company might cost more money in legal fees.

Aims at workers

Cason opens campaign with Sedalia address

Proclaiming himself "the people's candidate," State Sen. William Cason, D-Clinton, opened his gubernatorial campaign Tuesday night by telling about 60 persons he would vow "to see that the needs of men and women who have to work for a buck are met."

In an address at the hall of Laborer's Local No. 588, 1102 East Third, Cason said that, if elected, he would continue to work to correct inequities in the state tax structure and secure "improved" state minimum wage regulations.

Cason said he also favored granting labor bargaining rights to public employees and indicated he felt that had such a law been in effect during the past two years, the lengthy school strikes in St. Louis and Kansas City probably could have been curbed or avoided.

"If there had only been some procedure for representatives of both sides to properly discuss their differences," he said. "That's why I believe there needs to be something done in this area ... public employees will strike if they have to whether there is any bargaining program or not. Such a (bargaining) program would serve to help avoid such situations."

Returning repeatedly to a favorite theme, Cason later reiterated his grassroots political philosophy and linked it with the origins of the Democratic Party.

"Thomas Jefferson had the idea that the pioneers and working people were being taken advantage of by the persons who owned the shipyards and the warehouses ... He founded the Democratic Party because of this," Cason said.

Cason called for a coalition of farmers and union members to support his candidacy, noting that "in the past, at times, there have been those who have taken the advantage by playing the interests of one group of people who have to work for a living against another group who have to work for a living ... Farmers and union members should be aware of this and unite together for common strength."

Union members should be constantly pushing for improved legislation and better conditions, Cason said, "because the benefits of organized labor have now been enjoyed by four generations of Americans — and has been taken for granted by three of those four generations."

"We have come a long way since Samuel Gompers and the beginnings of John L. Lewis," he continued. "A lot has been done, but a lot also hasn't been done."

One of his first actions after being elected Senate president pro tem, Cason said, was to appoint Sen. Robert Young, D-St. Louis, "the only member of the Senate who has to work by the hour with his hands" to head the Ways and Means Committee and Budget Committee.

"You can be darn sure that Bob Young knew the difference between $100 and $75 when it came down to costs," Cason said. "Too many of our millionaire governmental leaders don't seem to know. What we need are more people in critical decision-making positions who have to work for a living."

Cason cited the recently-passed legislation eliminating the household goods tax and the circuit-breaker bill giving citizens over age 65 relief from property tax payments as two specific examples of effective legislation passed under his guidance on the Senate floor.

"They've said that the household goods tax bill won't make that much difference,

Rebates stimulate sales

DETROIT (AP) — After 13 months of rising auto prices and sagging sales, some car dealers and buyers are responding warmly to rebate programs by the Big Three auto makers.

General Motors, under competitive pressure applied last week by Chrysler Corp. and Ford Motor Co., entered the discount arena Monday with its first rebate program since World War II.

The Big Three discounts range from $100 to $500 on selected models, and some dealers said the sales trend is being reversed, at least for this week. Sales figures were unavailable from Ford and Chrysler, but spot checks of dealerships found sales increasing.

A Tucson dealer wired Ford officials that weekend sales were the best in nine months.

Barrington Ford in Columbus, Ga., reported showroom traffic doubled after the rebate plan was announced. After many days with fewer than five sales the firm lost 20 deals on Saturday.

Pierce Motors in Tewksbury, Mass., said 400 persons came through its Ford showroom on Saturday, far above the average of recent weekends; 33 bought a new car.

The auto companies hope spring fever will take over to boost sales in March, although some dealers say they believe the rebates will provide only short-term relief.

GM rebates are on compact and subcompact models in its Chevrolet, Buick, Pontiac and Oldsmobile Divisions.

The $500 discounts are on the new Chevrolet Monza, Buick Skyhawk, and Olds Starfire models. The $200 discounts apply on the Chevy Vega and Nova, Pontiac Ventura and Astre, Buick Apollo, and the Oldsmobile Omega. Base prices on the GM rebate cars range from $2,799 for a stripped-down Vega to $4,156 for a Starfire.

Proposal to hire lawyers raises great controversy

By W. DALE NELSON
Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — With the nation's appeals courts falling farther and farther behind in their work, a proposal to hire staff lawyers to give the judges a hand has stirred up controversy.

The plan will be discussed at a four-day National Conference on Appellate Justice, opening Thursday in San Diego, Calif., under auspices of the National Center for State Courts and the Federal Judicial Center.

The conference is being held against a backdrop of what its sponsors call a "staggering inflation in caseload" in appeals courts.

In the New Jersey Appellate Division, for example, the number of appeals rose from roughly 1,000 in 1960 to more than 3,500 in the 1971-72 term.

From 1960 to 1970, appeals filed in the 11 U.S. Circuit Courts of Appeal increased 200 per cent, while the number of cases filed in the first place rose only 50 per cent.

Nobody seems to know why so many more cases are being appealed. A memorandum from the National Center for State Courts suggests that population increase, changes in laws and changes in public attitudes have played a part.

Whatever the causes, the courts have been unable to keep up. The median time for handling appeals in the federal circuit courts in fiscal 1974 was seven months and in many state appeals courts it is longer.

The National Center launched a four-state project in 1972 to test whether using a central staff of lawyers would help. Courts in Nebraska, Virginia, Illinois and New Jersey were chosen for the experiment.

The results have been reported by Daniel J. Meador, University of Virginia Law School professor and director of the project, in a volume distributed in advance of the conference.

Meador concludes that a court with such a staff can be more productive without the judges losing control over the decision-making process.

Not everybody agrees.

"I am profoundly aware of the state of the workload pressure motivating courts into this pattern, but I am against yielding to that pressure," says U.S. Circuit Judge George Clifton Edwards Jr. of Detroit.

"I think judicial decision-making should be done by judges. I do not think memoranda prepared by staff attorneys should ever appear as the order or opinion of the court."

The argument is not a new one. There have been charges from time to time that some U.S. Supreme Court justices and other jurists have relied more heavily on their law clerks than they should.

Only last year the Supreme Court ruled that some federal judges were going too far in their reliance on magistrates, a type of judicial assistant authorized by Congress in 1968. The court ruled 7 to 2 that magistrates could not hold evidentiary hearings in habeas corpus cases.

The Judicial Conference of the United States, in its meeting last fall, agreed reluctantly to allow the U.S. Circuit Court in San Francisco to add to the staff of attorneys it has been using to screen cases.

The official report on the conference's closed meeting says it "deliberated at length" before agreeing to the request. The conference contends that the real need is for more judges, but this requires approval of Congress.

The fear of some judges is that more hired help will make the appeals courts like some regulatory boards and commissions, whose members merely ratify decisions which have been worked out by the staff.

Staff attorneys in the pilot project screened cases to determine how they should be handled, wrote memoranda on cases to summarize them for the judges and drafted opposed opinions.

Edwards says there is good reason for circuit courts to have staff assistants in screening out frivolous appeals, but this "should be the outside limit of the staff function."

Meador argues: "Ultimately we depend on the integrity of the judge and his faithfulness to his judicial responsibilities."

Fish collectors should be smarter than their prey

HONOLULU (AP) — Keeping tropical fish is a genteel, relaxing hobby, unless you insist on collecting your own fish.

When you collect in the warm coastal waters of Hawaii, strength, cunning, a taste of danger and a tough hide come in handy. It also helps to be smarter than the fish.

"Sometimes you have to chase a fish for 20 minutes. You have to be in shape," said Dennis McGill, 27, of Honolulu. "Your legs take a beating on the coral. You have to wear gloves and pants."

brilliantly colored but elusive fish which inhabit the islands' coral reefs.

Local pet shops charge anywhere from $5 for a moorish idol to $30 for a tinkered butterfly to $50 for a long-nosed hawkfish.

With a little luck — and a permit from the state Fish and Game Department — most of the species of Hawaiian marine life are there for the taking.

When starting a salt water aquarium, hobbyists would do well to avoid even the shallow coastal waters and concentrate on tide pools.

Not only are the specimens easier to collect, McGill said, but they are easier to keep. Adapted to the fluctuating water levels and temperatures of the shallow pools, these creatures don't need the finicky care demanded by ocean fish.

A net, a five-gallon bucket and a battery-operated air pump are all the equipment needed to collect in the tide pools. Quick reflexes help too, because the denizens of the pools have sharp eyes and skittish temperaments.

When working offshore, McGill adds several nets, a snorkel, face mask, fins and a pry bar to his kit.

"You have to have patience," he explained.

"You have to outthink the fish, because they'll give you the run-around at first," McGill observes his prey to see where its home territory is, then he tries to chase it to unfamiliar waters. Other fish may help the collector by booting an intruding fish out of their territory.

The strategy is to wait until the fish emerges from hiding, then coax it along the rock to a waiting net, he said.

McGill spends at least six days a month collecting, but keeps few fish for himself. Most go to the public Waikiki Aquarium, and others are sold to fellow members of the Salt Water Aquarium Society of Hawaii.

"Now we're trying to rear fish, because soon we'll have a law that there won't be any collecting," McGill said. Heavy collecting, especially by commercial outfits, has depleted the fish population.

Marshall school site of bomb blast Friday

Democrat Capital Service

MARSHALL — The State Highway Patrol is investigating a bomb explosion late Friday night at the home of the superintendent of the Marshall State School and Hospital. There were no injuries.

A spokesman for the Highway Patrol said Tuesday night the Patrol is conducting examinations at its laboratory in Jefferson City to determine the type of bomb.

Mrs. Adrienne McKenna, said the bomb exploded between 11:50 and 11:55 p.m. Friday at the northwest corner of the home, located on the grounds of the school for retarded persons.

She said the blast shook the entire house and damaged a section of the sun porch window. She estimated damage at "just under $1,000."

Mrs. McKenna said the bomb "was not planted anywhere near a residence building. . . . It is not possible that it could have damaged one of the residence buildings."

She said school security guards were called immediately after the blast. The Highway Patrol was notified because the blast occurred on state property. The Saline County sheriff's department also is investigating.

Mrs. McKenna, who has been superintendent for two and a half years, said she does not believe the bomb was an attack on the school.

"There's nothing occurring particularly out of the ordinary here," she said. "It's obvious it (bomb) was directed in my direction."

Dr. Duane Hensley, state director of mental retardation programs, likewise offered no possible motive for the bombing.

Mrs. McKenna said it is not likely any of the residents of the facility could have planted the device. Doors to all buildings are locked at 10 p.m., she said.

She said the school maintains security guards on the school grounds at all times and has asked the guards to "be particularly observant of my house."

Sedalia. He estimated approximately 9,000 checks will have to be mailed.

Fourth Ward Republican George Dugan Jr. said if only one or two per cent of the customers cannot be located "then we are making too much out of this."

One councilman asked what will happen to the unclaimed money in the escrow account.

"What will ultimately happen to the money, I have no idea," Buckley said.

City Counselor Robert Fritz said that under the terms of the Third National Bank escrow account, Cablevision will make refunds after it has made deductions for postage and clerical help. The balance will be paid to the customers. Fritz also said no deadline ever has been established for the refunds.

"I can see this thing going on forever," Fourth Ward Republican Robert Eidson said.

"It will be done just as soon as possible," Harrison said. "As I see it, I'm under the order of the court to make the refunds."

Computers in California have been working on the refund question since last Thursday, Harrison said, adding: "I will continue to do what is necessary to get this done."

Replacement for Sillers is named by school board

In executive session Tuesday night, the Board of Education unanimously elected John Thomas, Heber principal, as the new assistant superintendent for elementary education, transportation and buildings and grounds.

Thomas will fill the slot currently held by P.A. Sillers, whose retirement is effective July 1.

Thomas, 46, has been Heber principal for nearly 13 years and has been with the Sedalia school system 21 years. He could not be reached for comment Wednesday.

A Smith-Cotton High School graduate, Thomas earned a B.S. degree in elementary education from Central Missouri State University (CMSU) in 1955. He earned his M.A. in elementary education from CMSU in 1957 and has done more than a year's additional work beyond his master's degree.

He previously taught school in LaMonte and at Horace Mann. He was guidance director at Smith-Cotton High School from 1961 through 1962, and served as principal at Whittier School from 1960 to 1961.

Prior to entering the education field, Thomas played professional baseball with the St. Louis Browns from 1947 to 1953.

Congress responds to economic plan

WASHINGTON (AP) — Congress is responding to President Ford's renewed drive for his economic program with quick action on tax relief while entangling his energy program in dispute.

In a no-retreat statement opening his news conference Tuesday, Ford said he will put into effect without congressional help his tariff on imported oil and would veto any mandatory gasoline rationing legislation.

House leaders went ahead with plans to open hearings today on tax abatement — both Ford's version and Democratic counterproposals.

But they moved to block the imposition of the $3-a-barrel tax on imported crude oil long enough for other options to be brought up.

House Majority Leader Thomas P. O'Neill Jr., D-Mass., said hearings will begin Monday or Tuesday on his resolution to hold up the tariff at least 90 days.

Ford said he would put it in effect by proclamation this week, clearing the way for the tax beginning at $1 on Feb. 1 and reaching $3 April 1.

In the nationally broadcast news conference, Ford also said "the United States does feel that the danger of war in the Middle East is very serious" and that diplomatic efforts to avoid an outbreak are being intensified with both Israel and the Arab states.

"We are supplying some arms to various states in that region," he said, adding it is important to maintain "a certain degree of military capability on all sides" while negotiations go on.

Ford again backed Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger in refusing to rule out military takeover of oil fields in the hypothetical situation that the West might be strangled by a petroleum cutoff. But he said this would be an extreme situation, not something like last year's short-lived embargo.

On other matters, Ford: — Said he cannot foresee any circumstances in which the United States might re-enter the Vietnam war, but said he will ask for another $300 million in military aid for South Vietnam.

— Said that "unfortunately" he must refrain from recommending a national health program because of his decision to start no new costly programs. Democrats have promised to press ahead on health insurance.

sending Christmas cards.

Kirkpatrick also commented on the absentee rate, saying, "It costs the school district about $3 a day for each child that misses school. I wonder if parents realize it costs the system money when a child misses school."

Keithly pointed out that when a student misses five or more days of classes, a letter is issued, informing parents of their legal responsibilities to send a child to school, and of the cost involved when a student does miss school.

Other announcements included: Board member Mrs. Jane Dugan was recently elected secretary-treasurer of the central division of the Missouri School Board Association; Mrs. Hausam was elected to the executive committee of the association. Her position includes district, state and regional work.

In executive session, prior to the board's regular meeting, the board:

Accepted the resignation of Mrs. Sharon Borchardt, language arts teacher at the junior high; appointed Mrs. Karin Keithly to replace Mrs. Borchardt; approved an additional $100 for swimming coach Earl Cooper due to the extended length of the swimming season; approved Wanda Meyer to teach remedial reading at Striped College and Whittier Schools; approved Mrs. Teresa Fowler as a school aide at Hubbard; accepted the resignation of Smith-Cotton coach Greg Cook; and approved Emil Moore as custodian, under the federal public service employment program. Moore's salary will be funded entirely by the federal government, Henningsen said.

Newspaper workshop to be held at S-C

Hope Shackelford

"The Newspaper in the Classroom" will be the subject of a workshop for teachers Friday to be held at Smith-Cotton High School.

Sponsored by the Sedalia school system and The Sedalia Democrat Co., the workshop will feature Mrs. Hope Shackelford, a nationally recognized authority on the use of newspapers in classroom instruction.

Mrs. Shackelford teaches English at Wichita, Kan., and her imaginative use of newspapers as instructional tools earned her the 1964 Pacemaker Award sponsored by the National Education Association and Parade Magazine.

Earning two bachelor's degrees and a master's degree from the University of Kansas, Mrs. Shackelford has taught at levels ranging from seventh grade to adult. She currently teaches ninth grade.

The workshop is geared for elementary, junior high and senior high levels, and is open to all interested persons. It will run from 9:15 a.m. to 4 p.m.

Gold, dollar off sharply

LONDON (AP) — The American dollar plunged to a new low in Switzerland today and was off sharply in other financial centers. Gold dropped also in major European markets.

The dollar dropped 1½ centimes in Zurich to the historic low of 2.4965 Swiss francs, despite support-buying by the Swiss state bank in an effort to slow the decline. The Swiss Bank has now supported the dollar for 10 out of the 14 trading days this year to a total said to be $200 million.

The previous low for the dollar was 2.5025 francs on Dec. 30.

The West German Central Bank has been buying dollars recently to prop up the rate, but there was no indication whether either the Banque de France or the Bank of England have been in the market.

Most exchange dealers attributed the weakness of the American currency to declining interest rates in the United States, but they said there were other contributing factors.

One was reported to be continuing repercussions of the collapse last year of the financial empire of Italy's Michele Sindona. These were said to be affecting the Swiss exchanges particularly.

Bullion dealers said they could see no clearcut reason for a $3 drop in the price of gold in Zurich and the decline of $1.50 in London.

Cream, cans taken

Three ten-gallon cans of cream were reported stolen from a truck parked on the Tullis Hall Dairy parking lot, 541 East Fifth, between Monday night and early Tuesday morning, Sedalia police reported.

Entry to the vehicle was gained by prying a lock. No value was placed on the cans or the cream.

Jarrett is named

It was incorrectly reported in Tuesday's Democrat that William Jarrett, 1101 South Sneed, was named to replace Richard Lambden on the Police Personnel Board. The person named to serve the remainder of Lambden's term on the board was Bill Jarrett, 901 South Quincy, office manager of the B. C. Christopher and Co. office here.

say only about $35 or $45," he said. "Well, for most of you here, that would be enough to take a fishing trip or two or maybe visit the grandkids," he said. "Some people just don't seem to realize the value of $35."

In a question-and-answer session following his address, Cason said he opposed regional government headed by directors appointed at the discretion of federal officials.

"However," he added, "I most certainly do favor regional planning for the various counties in Missouri if the citizens of those counties so desire. . . . Basically, I want self-determination on the part of the residents of the county as to whether they want regional planning. I want the people to decide, not some far-away federal officials."

Responding to another question, Cason said he didn't oppose the present practice of having state prison inmates perform maintenance work on the State Fairgrounds, but added, "I don't think they should be put to work on construction projects and take jobs away from private citizens."

Country music tied to religion

NASHVILLE, Tenn. (AP)—Religion, in one form or another, has always been a prime force in country music. Traditionally, however, country gospel entertainers have wanted to sing about their God.

But not Connie Smith.

"I was saved seven years ago, but I still sing the same type of country songs I always have," says the 33-year-old blonde.

"Sometimes I turn down a good song that gives too much glory to man. But most songs I sing, especially love songs, are about the Lord anyway, because I feel the love of God in everything."

When Bill Anderson brought Miss Smith to Nashville from Ohio in 1964, she was one of country music's Cinderella figures. Shortly after signing her first recording contract, her first single, "Once a Day" jumped to the top of the charts.

But for the naive newcomer to country music, Nashville was almost too much to handle.

"In a few years I had gone through my second divorce, was $75,000 in debt, had four lawsuits against me and was seeing a psychiatrist," she recalls. "That's as close to the bottom as I'd ever want to go."

"I was ignorant and too immature to face reality."

A performance on the WSM Gospel Show hosted by Rev. Jimmy Rogers Snow, son of Hank Snow, was the beginning of Miss Smith's conversion as what she calls a "born-again Christian."

"Rev. Snow saw that I needed to be saved and showed me the way. It was a soul searching time. I thought 'I can't do it alone, I can't raise two boys without a daddy.'"

"But I began to be rebuilt and the changes were good. I married a fine, Christian husband who sought me out and who is constantly trying to make me happy. We have a loving, Christian home."

Miss Smith's two sons, by earlier marriages, are Kerry, 6, and Darren, 12. Her daughter, Julie Rae, 13 months, is the first child of her marriage to Marshall Haynes. A second is expected in April.

Family life and new-found Christianity have not kept Connie Smith from her career. She records about four albums a year for Columbia Records. Her single "I've Got My Baby on My Mind," is currently in the top 15 on the country music charts.

"I still love to sing and I love country music. Only now I don't seek a hit. I'm more interested in my family and not anxious about how my records do."

"Of course, I like success and I really appreciate it when a song does well."

The change in Miss Smith brought about a change in her attitude toward Nashville's music industry.

"When I started having troubles, I was bitter toward the industry for some time," she remembers. "Before I got saved, I was blaming it (the music business) for my unhappiness."

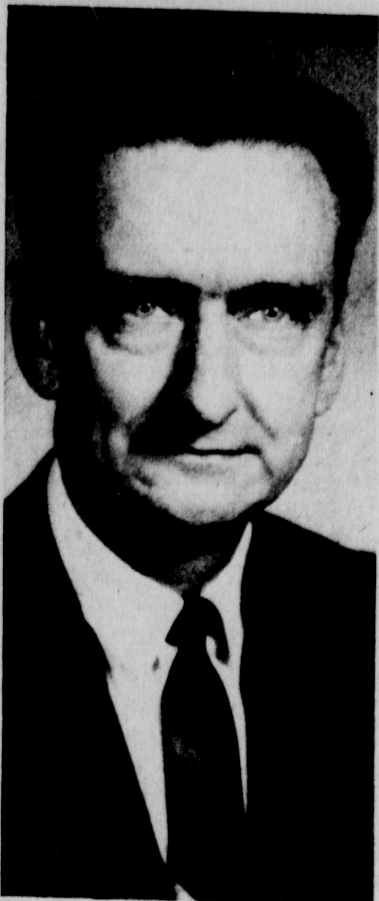

"But the Lord made me realize it was me and not the music people. This made me love the industry with a foundation and not as a fantasy that went wrong."

Miss Smith likened her past in country music to that of another Cinderella figure, Jeannie C. Riley, who burst into the limelight with "Harper Valley PTA."

"Jeannie's highs have been higher and probably her lows lower," says Miss Smith. "But I was probably more immature even though I was older when I first had success."

Like her predecessor Miss Riley is an evangelical, new-found Christian. Both women attend the same church, as does another country music singer, Skeeter Davis.

"The only advice I would give a girl singer coming to Nashville is not to sing a song that another girl sings. If you do there is an immediate comparison between you and her."

Cataract operation is success

JERUSALEM (AP) — Former Prime Minister Golda Meir, who underwent surgery to remove a cataract on her left eye last week, has been released from Hadassah hospital here.

Doctors said Monday that Mrs. Meir, 76, was in satisfactory condition. She is expected to return to the hospital in a few weeks for another cataract operation, this time on her right eye.

Prince Bernhard begins his tour

Speaker

Judge J.P. Morgan of the Missouri Supreme Court will address Sedalia Kiwanians at their meeting Thursday noon at the Bothwell Hotel. A native of Silex, Mo., Judge Morgan has served on the high court since Jan. 3, 1969.

THE HAGUE (AP) — Prince Bernhard of the Netherlands has begun a tour that will include official visits to Venezuela and Colombia, followed by short private visits to Panama, Costa Rica and Mexico. On Feb. 8, he is scheduled to arrive in the United States on a visit said to be devoted principally to the business of the World Wildlife Fund, of which the prince is chairman.

Three nominated for "black book"

CARSON CITY (AP) — Three men who exhausted legal moves in a federal case on hidden casino interests are being nominated for Nevada's "black book" of unsavory types, unwelcome in clubs here.

Deputy Atty. Gen. Bud Hicks said Monday state Gaming Control Board Chairman Phil Hanifin instructed him to begin the process for Anthony Zerilli, 47, Sterling Heights, Mich., Michael Santo Polizzi, 51, Grosse Pointe Shores, Mich., and Anthony Giardano, 59, St. Louis, Mo.

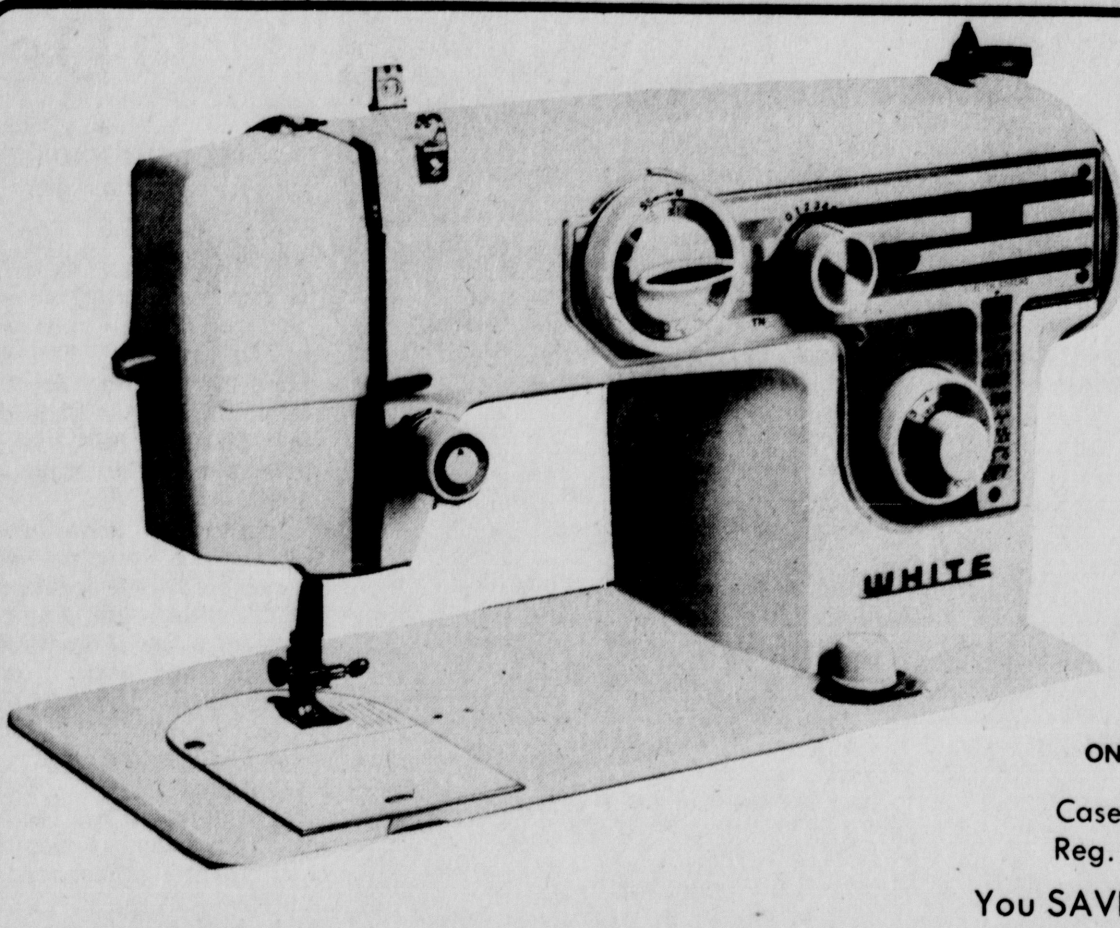

All three were found guilty of having an illegal hidden interest in the Frontier Hotel-Casino in Las Vegas during the late 1960s before billionaire Howard Hughes bought the club.

The U.S. Supreme Court's recent dismissal of a petition for review of the case prompted the decision to start "black book" paperwork, Hicks said.

He added that besides their involvement in the Frontier case, all three men are alleged underworld members.

Gaming officials are expected to release an updated version of the "black book" shortly. It was first circulated in 1960 to casinos who could lose licenses if persons listed are found on their grounds.

The updated version will list nine persons with alleged underworld links. It will jump to 12 if Zerilli, Giardano and Polizzi are unsuccessful in protesting the Gaming Board plan.

Housing industry key consumer confidence

By RICK SCOTT
Associated Press Writer
DALLAS, Tex. (AP) — The mood of homebuilders here for their annual convention is one of preparedness. Many say they see better days ahead.

They say the key is consumer confidence. "I think we're on our way," Robert H. Meyers of Evansville, Ind., said Monday. "There is a need for housing. People just haven't had the confidence to buy."

"But things are going to get better and we're going to have to be ready."

The sentiment was echoed by many of the some 20,000 members of the National Association of Home Builders who are in Dallas.

Multifamily housing (apartment) starts dropped 73 per cent in the last year. Construction of single-family homes is at a near standstill in many areas.

James T. Lynn, secretary of the Department of Housing and Urban Development, announced at the convention Monday a four-point program to aid the industry, including a lowering of the interest ceiling on mortgages insured by the Federal Housing Administration and Veterans Administration from 9 to 8.5 per cent.

Lynn said his agency also plans to: —Allocate $900 million to subsidize the rents of poor tenants. He said the subsidies, which will be paid directly to landlords, will aid 350,000 to 385,000 poor families.

—Loan $215 million in support of the construction of an estimated 10,000 rental units for the elderly and the handicapped over the next two years.

—Provide government-backed insurance for loans on existing apartment buildings. Lynn said the insurance would make it easier for landlords to obtain mortgages on existing buildings so they can build new structures.

Decision soon on dairy price boost

By DON KENDALL
AP Farm Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Agriculture Department is expected to decide soon, perhaps by early next week, on a request by dairy farmers for a boost in minimum prices paid them for Class I milk sold in federal milk marketing order areas.

As outlined at a hearing Monday, the proposal would prevent a 35-cent decline next month in the minimum prices farmers are guaranteed under marketing order regulations. The decrease will be automatic unless USDA acts to prevent it.

Judson P. Mason, representing the National Milk Producers Federation, said "there is urgent need" to increase prices of Class I milk sold for drinking and other fluid purposes so that they are in line with a new basic milk price support level announced earlier this month.

"The patience of dairy farmers has been sorely tested by adversities," Mason told the hearing. "The milk production trend has been downward. The exodus of farmers from the dairy production business is continuing."

Agriculture Secretary Earl L. Butz on Jan. 3 announced an increase in milk price supports, effective the following day, to $7.24 per 100 pounds of manufacturing milk sold to make butter, cheese and other products from $6.57 which had been in effect since last spring.

But the increase only affected manufacturing milk immediately. Under federal rules, Class I minimums are set after a two month lag based on the average price of manufacturing milk sold in Minnesota and Wisconsin.

The so-called M-W price average has been declining. In November, used to compute January Class I minimums, it was $6.76 per 100 pounds. And in December, which normally would be used in the Class I formula for February, it was $6.41 per 100 pounds.

The federation's original proposal called for substitution of a flat $7.30 rate in the formula to replace the normal M-W average.

In its presentation Monday, the federation said another alternative could involve the suspension of the two-month lag used in setting Class I minimum prices for February and March, and letting the M-W average of the preceding month take effect.

That alternative also would effectively suspend the December M-W average and prevent the 35-cent decline which otherwise would occur for Class I milk.

If the full $7.30 formula floor price proposed originally by the federation is allowed, the February Class I average minimum would be about $9.40 per 100 pounds of fluid milk. If the December M-W average is used, it will be about $8.51 per 100 pounds, compared with a national average minimum of $8.86 this month.

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Jan. 1 inventory of feedlot cattle in 23 states totaled about 9.6 million head, down 26 per cent from a year earlier and the smallest at the start of a new year in a decade, the Agriculture Department said Monday.

The 23 states, which produce about 95 per cent of the nation's grain-fed beef cattle, produced slightly more than six million head for market during the last quarter of 1974. That was 14 per cent fewer than in the same period a year earlier and 18 per cent fewer than in the fourth quarter of 1972.

Placement of new cattle in feeding pens in the last quarter was down 20 per cent from October-December 1973 and 32 per cent below the fourth quarter of 1972, the department said.

WASHINGTON (AP) — Two advisory committees representing major farm commodities will meet at the Agriculture Department next month to discuss the production and marketing situation affecting those crops in the year ahead.

The panels are the 38-member National Advisory Committee on Cotton and a 37-member committee representing wheat, feed grains and cotton. Officials said Monday the two groups will meet at USDA Feb. 12-13.

Much speculation on Mexican President

By CHARLES GREEN
Associated Press Writer

MEXICO CITY, Mexico (AP) — Most cartoonists draw him with a white hood covering his head. Some draw in a giant index finger poised above.

He is "El Tapado," the man who will be the next president of Mexico.

He won't take office until Dec. 1, 1976, but Mexicans already are engaging in one of their favorite pastimes: speculating on who President Luis Echeverria and a small group of influential men within the ruling party will select as the next person to don the red, white and green sash worn only by the president, the most powerful man in Mexico.

For one six year term — he cannot be re-elected — that man will have almost dictatorial power under the traditional Mexican political system.

In Mexico, "Tapado" means one thing. He is the man, so far hidden, who this year will leap onto front pages when the Institutional Revolutionary Party (PRI) that has ruled Mexico for half a century designates him as its official candidate for the presidency.

Opposition parties exist in Mexico, but they have never been able to elect a state governor, much less a president. The National Action Party (PAN) is the major opposition group and certainly will have a presidential candidate in the July 1976 voting.

But the PAN candidate in 1970 drew less than 10 per cent of the popular vote. The remainder went to Echeverria.

The process of selection by the PRI is shrouded in secrecy, mystery and myth.

Many Mexicans have no idea October, if tradition is followed, that this fall, probably some time in late September or early October, if tradition is followed, some large segment of the party will "spontaneously" demand that a certain man be named candidate.

In 1969, a group of farmers, members of the rural sector of the PRI, appeared in of the interior ministry in Mexico City, waving placards and shouting the name of the minister of the interior: Luis Echeverria. Within minutes word spread throughout Mexico City and into the countryside: Echeverria had been "destapado" — uncovered.

The president, according to insiders, has a predominant voice in the selection process. His choice is given to a handful of party leaders for approval. They can reject his first choice, the insiders say, but do not have enough power to put forth their own candidate over his.

Those involved in the selection process never talk about it in public. But it has been said privately, without confirmation, that Echeverria was not the first choice of his predecessor, Gustavo Diaz Ordaz. But it was still Diaz Ordaz who finally gave the nod to Echeverria.

Once the president and party leaders agree, the "spontaneous" demonstrations in favor of the man start. Then, a month or two later, the man's name is formally approved by the party's national convention.

At least 14 names have emerged as presidential possibilities, but most people limit the number to four. All of them are professional politicians now in high positions. Only one is over 50 years of age.

Mario Moya Palencia, the man who replaced Echeverria as minister of the interior, is considered to have a slight edge for historical reasons, if nothing else. Five of the past seven presidents have stepped from that job into the presidential residence.

The president is so powerful and so dominant in Mexican politics that it is impossible to judge from public statements what the political leanings of the possible candidates might be. Not until the man is on his own will he start speaking for himself.

Others considered to be strong candidates to be unwrapped as the next president are: —Hugo Cervantes del Rio, 47, minister of the presidency. He has charge of administering the various departments within the presidency.

—Jose Lopez Portillo, 54, minister of the treasury took office in midstream in 1973. He is recognized as a very efficient administrator with a strong economic background. But his economic policies are just an extension of Echeverria's.

—Porfirio Munoz Ledo, 41, minister of labor. His stand on labor, and enforcement of Mexico's strongly proworker federal labor law, have given him a public reputation of being far to the left.

—Moya Palencia, 41, holds the most important cabinet position. His ministry combines functions of the U.S. justice and interior departments with much broader responsibilities in police and law enforcement as well as in electoral supervision. This ministry dispenses many political favors which makes the man in charge a force second only to the president in political power.

Doctor operates under pressures

SANTA MONICA, Calif. (AP) — "If I'm ever stabbed or have heart trouble, I hope he's the one on duty," said a police crime technician who looked on as a surgeon performed open heart surgery on a stabbing victim.

The surgeon, Dr. William G. Plested, decided delay meant death for the victim and without going to the operating room he immediately went to work in a hospital emergency room.

The doctor didn't even use an anesthetic, swiftly concluding that would be too risky for the man's condition, officials said. The technician and others held the patient on a table.

"When the doctor walked in, he seemed to get his gown on and his instruments out in one motion," said Jim Simpson, 30, an identification technician who went to the hospital to get photographs of the operation Sunday.

Police said the stabbing victim, Herman Paulk, 44, of San Bernardino, was strolling in Palisades Park with his wife Sunday night after darkness when they were attacked by three youths. Ironically, the couple said later, they had gone to the park because they considered the nearby ocean beach unsafe.

Paulk was listed in stable condition and was expected to live, a hospital spokesman said.

Motherhood's gone to the dogs

Winnie Pooh's 13 puppies line up for chow, but Mom's only got ten nipples. With a little help from her owner, Miss Nelda Aldridge of Bloomington, Ill., the registered Basset Hound has so far managed to feed her litter.

Short course on electricity is offered here

A practical wiring and electricity short course will be offered by the University of Missouri Extension Center at 7 p.m. on Tuesday nights, beginning Feb. 18. Eight classes will be held.

The instructor will be Fred Crawford, Extension agricultural engineering specialist at the University of Missouri-Columbia.

The course is designed to teach basic knowledge of electricity and wiring and could serve as an introduction to anyone considering entering the electrical field.

The registration deadline is Feb. 11 and application should be made at the Extension Center, 1806 West 11th, or by calling 827-0591.

Russians developing long-range bomber

WASHINGTON (AP) — U.S. intelligence sources say the Russians have started deploying a new long-range supersonic bomber that may be an issue in the next stage of U.S. Soviet negotiations on limiting nuclear weapons.

They said a small number of the new bombers, code-named Backfire, have appeared at a Soviet air force base in southwestern Russia and a Soviet naval base in the Black Sea region.

Although expected, the first deployment of the swing-wing Backfire could sharpen a controversy potentially standing in the path of final U.S.-

Soviet agreement on curbing nuclear arms.

Administration officials said the status of the new bomber was not resolved when President Ford and Soviet Communist chief Leonid I. Brezhnev agreed last November on the framework of a ten-year pact restricting each country to 2,400 strategic missiles and heavy bombers.

These officials indicated the United States may press for inclusion of the Backfire under this ceiling when U.S. and Russian diplomats meet in Geneva starting Jan. 31 to work toward a formal signing of the agreement.

New trainer not like others

NEW YORK (AP) — A press agent for the newest member of the Professional Athletes Trainers Association says his client is not like any other trainer.

He says you can throw away the stodgy image of a cigar-chomping fellow with a towel and pail attending to his charges.

Boy, is he right. The newest pro trainer isn't a cigar-chomper, isn't a towel-carrier and isn't even a fellow.

She's 27-year-old Joan Vivian Gillette, whose perfume could sweeten the scent of any locker room.

Miss Gillette will be doing just that to the training rooms at the University of Nevada-Las Vegas, where she will start work Jan. 24.

Her credentials for becoming the first woman member of the PATA are impressive.

She graduated from the University of Southern Mississippi in 1969 and earned her masters degree at Texas Woman's University in 1973. Her thesis was "A Cinematographical Analysis of the Velocity, Rotations and Angles of Inclination and Trajectory of the Football Forward Pass."

Her subjects on that work were the well-known experts on rotating and inclining a forward pass: quarterbacks Roger Staubach and Craig Morton.

Since then, Miss Gillette has served as trainer for the Women's Pro Tennis Tour and the International Pro Track Tour. She has been nominated to bring her bandages and gauze to the next Olympic Games and the Pan American Games.

Miss Gillette says it was only a matter of time before the next closed door to sexual equality—the locker room—was opened.

"Women's sports are on the boom," she says. "Men have enough responsibilities taking care of men. The women have to take care of women."

But Miss Gillette says she is just doing her job; she doesn't want to be considered part of the Women's Lib Movement.

"I'm not for women's lib at all," the statuesque 5-foot-8, 128-pound brunette, says. "Billie Jean King has said it well for us ladies. She carries herself like a lady so we can all be ladies."

"Today, female athletes are accepted. In the past, we weren't supposed to sweat. Our basic goals in life were to get married and have babies."

"Well, that's all changed now. But I don't agree when some feminists push their views down other people's throats."

No shortage with natural gas use

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Americans who heat their homes with natural gas won't have to worry about a shortage of fuel this winter, but they will have to cope with rising prices that could go even higher if President Ford's energy proposals are adopted.

An Associated Press survey showed that utilities report an adequate supply of gas to serve residential customers. Shortages may cause problems, however, for so-called interruptible users — businesses and industries whose contracts include provisions for supply reductions in times of need.

The American Gas Association estimates that two-thirds of all Americans heat their homes with natural gas. The average heating bill for 1973, the latest year for which figures are available, was $155, the association said.

In a December ruling, the Federal Power Commission authorized natural gas producers to charge up to 50 cents per 1,000 cubic feet for gas sold to interstate pipelines from wells that began operation after Jan. 1, 1973. Ford, in his State of the Union message, proposed an excise tax of 37 cents per 1,000 cubic feet of natural gas and removal of federal regulation of interstate gas prices.

Ford also has urged steps to increase the price of both imported and domestic crude oil, a move that administration spokesmen say would boost the cost of gasoline and other petroleum fuels by about 10 cents a gallon.

Americans apparently are managing to pay their heating bills, however. With only a few exceptions, natural gas companies and heating oil distributors reported no increase in service cutoffs because of nonpayment of bills.

Local gas associations say prices to consumers already are up anywhere from 10 to 25 per cent over last year.

Back to prison

G. Gordon Liddy, who directed the Watergate burglary team, walks in the snow from U.S. District Court in Washington Monday after being ordered to resume his interrupted prison sentence at the federal prison in Danbury, Conn. Liddy was given a prison sentence of six years and eight months to 20 years in 1973.

Propose television conferences

BRUSSELS (AP) — Instead of spending so much time and money flying around the world, why can't statesmen organize their conferences by television?

This is not just the grumble of a citizen making out his tax return. The question has been raised in a serious way by a study of the way the nine countries of the European Common Market conduct their joint business. The study was made by a group under the leadership of William Wallace, a lecturer on government at Britain's Manchester University.

"Conference calls" have long been a commonplace of long distance telephone service. Wallace pointed out that the only such circuit used by the Common Market is limited to conversations among dealers in foreign currencies.

He wrote: "For a level of expenditure which can only be considered infinitesimal in comparison with what the major European governments spend on aircraft or on support for the computer industry, it would be possible to establish communications centers in Brussels and in each national capital which would enable ministers to discuss texts, to consult on immediate developments, perhaps even to reach decisions without suffering the inconvenience and the lost time involved in international travel."

It could be argued that top people making important joint decisions would want to have a look at one another. That can be arranged too.

The British Post Office, Wallace reported, has a "confravision" service that can link groups as large as five people in three different cities. This costs 180 pounds — about $415 — an hour in Britain. The conference can be extended to participants in two Swedish cities — Stockholm and Malmoe — and a link is being planned with The Hague in the Netherlands.

But he quoted a post office spokesman as saying that there has not been much interest for other European points.

"It is difficult to believe," Wallace commented, "that governments could not rapidly install an advanced equivalent of this commercial scheme."

His report, published in the quarterly "Journal of Common Market Studies," is not so much concerned with the travels of the Kissingers and the Brezhnevs as with the hundreds of lower ranking officials on the European circuit.

No more skiing for President

WASHINGTON (AP) — As snow deepened outside the Oval Office, President Ford talked informally with advisers about skiing. He told them ski resorts like those in New England might have faced economic disaster if they hadn't had a good Christmas season this year.

But when a reporter asked Ford Monday if this year's schedule includes more skiing like he did on his recent year-end vacation in Vail, Colo., he said the season is over for him.

Tub problem finds several answers

By POLLY CRAMER

DEAR POLLY — We recently installed a fiberglass tub and the instructions that came with it recommended a thorough cleaning with a liquid detergent and then a coat of automobile polish before it is used. Regular maintenance suggested is a foam spray or that powdered cleanser put in water, used by so many of us on our floors as it requires no rinsing. I have found a liquid detergent containing a small amount of ethyl alcohol really cuts the grime. Pour a small amount on a cloth or sponge, wipe and rinse. The results have been most pleasing and I find it is no more time consuming than using sprays. — ETHEL.

DEAR POLLY and Mrs. P.G. — I find that a mixture made of baking soda even removes grease from the sink when my husband's hands are dirty from working on the car. A little vinegar will remove water stains from chrome faucets and keep them shining. — LYNN.

DEAR POLLY — My Pet Peeve concerns the printed information on the protective covering for film. When one shoots several rolls of color with varying exposures it is easy to forget which is which when mailing it to the processor and this causes confusion about the amount of money to enclose. Very little would be added to the cost if the printing read "Exposed film" as most film roll covers state. — RUBY.

DEAR POLLY — A hatpin is very handy when sewing on hooks and eyes. Stick pin through one side from the top, pull it down until the head of the pin holds the hook or eye in place. Any dressmaker's pins with large heads would work just as well, too.

To hold fabric in place when making a belt I use several paper clips. I sew the material to the back of the belting, bring material around over the front to the back seam. As the folding or covering is done, place paper clips about four inches apart. This holds all in place until you whip stitch the covering in place. The result is a belt with no visible seams. — MRS. R.E.S.

Polly's problem

DEAR POLLY — I would like to know how to clean the white soap film on our plastic tub. We have just moved here and the former owner apparently never cleaned it. There is a thick film that neither scouring powder, foam-spray cleaners nor a paste made with baking soda will remove. The film disappears while the tub is wet but when it dries the film reappears. Also, how can I remove hard water spots from chrome faucets? — MRS. B.Y.

DEAR MRS. B.Y. — Mrs. P.G. asked the same question not too long ago and the above answers for her may be of help to you. — POLLY.

Dream of 47 years still unfulfilled

SALT LAKE CITY (AP) — Forty-seven years ago Minnie Lee Haynes, a descendant of slaves who sharecropped in Mississippi, Tennessee and Arkansas, began domestic work in Salt Lake City for 25 cents a day.

Today, at 93, she still has a dream — to own her own home.

"I just want a house of my own," she said looking out the window of the small house she rents by herself on the West Side. "And I want a yard, too. I love to raise flowers and have my own lawn."

Her hands lacing the air in animation, Mrs. Haynes told of another dream, that one fulfilled — the education of her children.

"That's the reason I reckon I'm known. I've been in front of the Board of Education in every school there is in this town, trying to keep them in school," she said.

Her grandfather, Samuel Chambers, joined the Church of Jesus Christ of Latter-day Saints (Mormon), as a 13-year-old slave. In 1865, he worked his way to Salt Lake City where he prospered as a fruit farmer.

Mrs. Haynes grew up with her mother and sister, share-cropping throughout the South. In 1905, she married another sharecropper, Thomas Haynes, and raised a family.

But the grandfather, aging and ill, asked her to nurse him. Family in tow, she came and tended his needs until he died two years later.

She said life appeared better in Utah, so she stayed, her husband working part-time on the railroad.

"If I've got an enemy here," she said, "I don't know it."

She says she has worked in harmony with Mormons, who hold that their priesthood cannot be attained by blacks. She has attended their church, but didn't join. A Southern Baptist, she said she didn't see the sense of being "baptized again."

Mrs. Haynes, who has outlived her husband by 21 years, describes their relationship:

"I didn't let him boss me. We bossed each other. I was grown when he married me. And I didn't let him re-raise me."

Her memories of the South include all-night sessions making molasses, washing out her dress on Saturday for Sunday church, rooster fights, log rolling, plowing behind a mule, gas lights.

As she dreams of the home she someday hopes to own, Mrs. Haynes tells this story of the first home she remembers:

"It was nothing but a log house with the boards nailed over the cracks from end to end and on top. There was no roof for the cover of the house. Had to cover it with shingles and pieces of plank."

"And you could look up and see the stars through the top of the house when you were in bed. And when it rained, you'd have to get up and get the tub and set it down and catch the water."

"That's quite a house, when you live there."

Chiffon swirls

This is one of the models in chiffon presented by American-born designer Frank Martieri as part of his spring-summer collection. Shunning patterns and prints for evening, Martieri favored dove grey, white and sugar pink, pleated and handkerchief-pointed in chiffon, making a long fashion step backwards to the well-worn 1930s.

A friend indeed

Mary Davies, 62, a blind physiotherapist, hugs her guide dog "Ruby", who saved her from drowning in the icy waters of Torquay Harbor, near her Newton Abbot, England, home. When Miss Davies stepped off the harbor wall — thinking it was the edge of the pavement — the two-year-old Labrador jumped into the water after her. "Ruby" then swam around her mistress to keep her near the harbor steps until rescuers arrived.

A FREE BUCK TO HELP YOU BUCK INFLATION...FROM BURGER CHEF.

(GOOD ON ANY PURCHASE OF $4.00 OR MORE.)

A family meal at Burger Chef... already a good way to fight inflation.

After all, you can feed any size family for less than a dollar a person. Mom and Dad can have a hamburger, and a small soft drink. The kids can have Funmeals® or Funburgers®, soft drinks or shakes.

The buck that can help you buck inflation on any purchase of $4.00 or more.

But now, a meal at Burger Chef is an even better deal. Just clip out the Burger Chef "Buck", and bring it with you the next time you come to Burger Chef. No matter how large your family, or how small, if you spend four dollars or more on your next Burger Chef meal, we'll give you a dollar off.

The buck stops here.

The buck stops at Burger Chef, because we think it's about time someone held the line on the high cost of eating out as a family. We're not blaming someone else for inflation, we're doing something about it.

Chinese urge U.S. withdrawal

TOKYO (AP) — Premier Chou En-lai has given President Ford a broad hint that the Chinese Communist regime would like to see more American troops withdrawn from Taiwan soon.

In a "state of the nation" address to the National People's Congress in Peking last week, the 76-year-old premier said there are still fundamental differences between China and the United States, but "owing to the joint efforts of both sides, the relations between the two countries have improved to some extent in the last three years, and contacts between the two peoples have developed." Then he added: "The relations between the two countries will continue to improve so long as the principles of the Sino-American Shanghai communique are carried out in earnest."

The Shanghai communique which President Nixon and Chou signed in February, 1972, promised the withdrawal of all U.S. troops from Taiwan — some 5,000 remain — and ultimately full diplomatic relations between the two governments. Each now maintains a liaison office in the other's capital, a step short of full diplomatic relations.

Chou sees the Chinese-American rapprochement as a means of countering Soviet expansion in the Far East. He also views the Japanese-American alliance as an aid to this policy. Speaking Monday in Peking with Shigeru Hori of Japan's ruling Liberal-Democratic party, Chou reportedly said the ties between Washington and Tokyo are "of very great importance," and the Japanese people must "fully understand their significance."

Chou in his speech to the congress predicted that the ideological quarrel between the Chinese and Soviet Communist parties will "go on for a long time." But he again held out the olive branch, saying the debate over Marxism should not obstruct relations between the two neighbors.

He said negotiations on their border dispute have "yielded no results" since 1969, largely because Moscow refuses to agree to a mutual pullback of troops. He urged the Russians to "sit down and negotiate honestly, do something to solve a bit of the problem and stop playing such deceitful tricks."

It's never too late

On their own but most important together, Ignazio Collica, left, 86, and his fiancée Vita Pellerito, 82, sit in the kitchen of their temporary apartment Monday after eloping from their homes at Tereasini, near Palermo, Sicily. The couple made the decision to relocate to avoid pressures from relatives who were trying to dissuade them from marrying.

Health care soars in mining town

HINDMAN, Ky. (AP) — Health care facilities for this tiny (pop. 808) Eastern Kentucky mining town in the past two years have gone from almost nothing to almost everything.

Slightly less than two years ago, health care here was administered by two doctors, nurses at the county health department and a dentist who visited two days a week.

Now the county boasts of two elaborate clinics, four doctors, two dentists, 12 nurses, two lab technicians, two x-ray technicians, two pharmacists and other supportive personnel totaling 52 people.

The change came about through extension of an Appalachian Regional Hospital at Hazard, 20 winding miles away, with federal funding on the one hand, and the privately funded efforts of two local men on the other.

The Appalachian Regional Commission came up with most of the funding for the clinic where ARH is employed as administration and the community did the rest.

"We worked for five years, getting the 20 per cent local funds to build the ARH clinic. We didn't know those other fellows were planning one, too," County Judge Sid Williams said.

The "other fellows" are Benny Bailey and Dr. Grady Stumbo, once classmates at nearby Alice Lloyd College, who have fulfilled a longtime dream of improved health care for their native Knott County.

They didn't talk to others about their plan much until both had attended graduate school — Bailey getting a doctorate in administration and Stumbo a medical doctor's degree.

By that time, the machinery had been set in motion for 80 per cent federal financing of a clinic here.

Bailey and Dr. Stumbo offered to staff the clinic, but only if they could put their revolutionary health care practices into the operation and be free to administer it themselves.

But government financing doesn't allow changes in policies along the way, so they were turned down. That refusal turned out to be the best thing for Hindman.

Bailey and Dr. Stumbo, using donations from friends, foundations and anywhere else they could find them, built a $1-million clinic about two miles from Hindman.

"We've had patients in here for such things as a broken arm, and found out they have some disease they didn't even know about. That's the whole idea of our program," Bailey said. "We always felt that, especially in this area of the mountains, where doctors are overworked, the obvious symptom is treated and the patient is sent home. We just wanted to change that."

The staff at the clinic that Bailey administers totals 20, including two doctors, a dentist, technicians and other supporting personnel.

About three miles away, on the opposite side of Hindman, the ARH clinic opened this fall. It is named for Mrs. June Buchanan, an administrative staff member at Alice Lloyd College who donated the land where it was constructed.

The two doctors, who had been operating out of offices in Hindman, were moved into the clinic. A fulltime dentist, two registered nurses, four practical nurses and other personnel totaling 32 were added.

Dr. Watts and Dr. Denzil Barker once saw some 60 to 70 patients a day, with any laboratory work referred to the hospital at Hazard, some other clinic in the area or the University of Kentucky at Lexington.

Now, the four doctors in Hindman have their own laboratories. "We used to have to wait for a lab report," Dr. Watts said. "Now we work with the patient and get the report all at the same time."

Israel seeks aid

By KENNETH J. FREED
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — Israel has asked the United States for about $2.2 billion in military and economic aid, more than three times what it received in the current aid package, U.S. and Israeli sources said Monday.

About $1.5 billion of that would be for military aid, the rest for economic assistance, the sources said.

The request is now being considered by the State Department and Ford administration budget experts, the U.S. officials said, explaining that no decision has been made yet.

The current aid request compares with the $674 million the Israelis received last year, about $300 million of it in military credits.

However, following the 1973 Yom Kippur war in the Middle East, the United States gave Israel $2.1 billion in emergency military aid to compensate for the major losses of equipment suffered by the Jewish state.

It was understood that the current request is primarily for direct grants rather than loans and would not be repaid. It was also understood Israel is seeking major supplies of planes, tanks, artillery and other heavy arms.

U.S. officials indicated the administration would study the Israeli request and then make its own recommendation and pass it on to Congress.

Introducing The-four-Lite beers-and-one-blonde caper.

by Mickey Spillane.

It was around eleven. The bar was still. The quiet heat of summer hung like a cloud over the place. I had ordered another Lite. Beer. It was then that I realized two things.

First, a great-looking blonde who raised the temperature of the place about ten degrees had walked in. And second, this new Lite Beer wasn't filling me up the way regular beer does.

As I watched Miss Pretty Face from the corner of my eye, I read the label of the bottle. And suddenly all the pieces of the puzzle fit together. It was less filling because it had less carbohydrates and one-third less calories than their regular beer. And it tasted great.

All kinds of thoughts were running through my head. America had a great-tasting beer that was less filling. I wanted another Lite Beer. I didn't feel filled up. And a guy who looked suspiciously like Miss Pretty Face's husband took a seat next to her.

Well — you can't win them all.

New Lite Beer from Miller.

Ann Landers

Inadequate advice supplied to woman

Dear Ann Landers: I am writing in regard to your answer to the 26-year-old woman who had been married four times, had five nervous breakdowns, two children, another on the way, and was considering marriage to a 24-year-old man. Anyone with such a history at 26 must have had a load of personal difficulties which contributed to her marital and emotional breakdowns.

Unless some significant progress has been made in working out these difficulties, it is unrealistic to expect that a fifth marriage would turn out any better than the first four.

Your advice — "Grab him" — seemed totally misdirected. You never even raised any of the important issues, such as: Is the woman receiving ongoing treatment at the present time? Is the man similar to any of her previous husbands (or her father)? Has HE been married before? Does HE have a psychiatric history? Sorry, but you blew it, doll. — A Social Work Student

Dear Student: You are right. I did. Thank you for pointing out the inadequacy of my response. The reader was certainly entitled to a better answer than I gave her, and I appreciate your letting me know it.

Dear Miss Landers: I have been a housekeeper for a wealthy woman for four years, but I am not allowed to answer the door or the telephone. If an appliance is broken, I am not supposed to mention it because such things irritate her. ("They don't make things like they used to.")

I must serve meals seven days a week — breakfast at 8:00 a.m., lunch at 12:30 p.m. and dinner at 6:30 p.m. If I announce a meal four minutes early I am told, "You are four minutes ahead of schedule." On days when madame drinks a little more than usual she doesn't respond to the dinner call until 7:15 or 7:30 p.m. By then the food is dried out. She then complains that it is inedible.

This is a good-paying job, but is it worth the money if I get ulcers from aggravation? What do you advise? — Heading For Louisville

Dear Heading: Madame is not playing with a full deck. What's more, there is no way one can rationalize with a disturbed person who has the added problem of alcoholism.

Get another job even if it means less money. (Incidentally, honey, nobody should have work seven days a week. Lincoln freed the slaves in 1863.)

Dear Ann Landers: I have this friend who really bugs me. Whenever we talk on the phone (which is quite often) our conversations are always interrupted by one or more of her children who have questions that require answers.

Without excusing herself she launches into lengthy discussions (or arguments) with the kids and I am left dangling on the other end.

Should I ask her to call me back when she is finished with her children so we can have a decent conversation? Am I wrong to think this is rude? Or must kids ALWAYS come first? — Cut Dead

Dear Cut: I have three lovely grandchildren who sometimes pull this on their mother, Margo. Here's how SHE handles it. In a pleasant tone (no anger) she says, "I'm talking to Gram now and when I'm through I'll be glad to answer all your questions. Run along."

Benton remembered as 'an American original'

EDITORS: Associated Press Writer Jules Loh was a personal friend of Thomas Hart Benton, who died Sunday. Here is his personal remembrance of the artist.

By JULES LOH
Associated Press Writer
Thomas Hart Benton used to scoff at the notion that any person could be deemed essential, or even very important. But no one who knew Benton, that rumbled gnome with the drool eyes and rapier wit, would agree. An American original is gone.

Benton died Sunday, three months short of his 86th birthday — dropped dead in his studio, a working artist to the end.

His admirers were countless and his friends legion but Tom Benton himself said he had very few pals.

His pals were the ones he floated rivers with and sipped bourbon with and sat up with until the fire grew low and the hour late and Rita Benton put her foot down.

It was in those rich moments, in the company of persons who held him less in awe than in friendship, that Thomas Hart Benton's originality crackled with the sharpness and color of his canvases. Always, one yearned for a pencil and pad to keep the memory of it.

Once he said: "I've lost confidence in the belief that the strong men ought necessarily to be the leaders. Wise men ought to lead. But wise men rarely have the strength; strong men rarely have the wisdom."

He also said: "America puts too many old men in office. I have seen no evidence that old men act any less irrationally than young men, and young men are more flexible-minded." And once, discussing people who buy paintings to enhance their status, he said:

"The meat packer who has become a millionaire is no longer just a butcher when his house is full of great cultural imports."

Tom Benton had two loves: Rita, his wife of 52 years, with whom he got a great kick out of skinny-dipping at their summer place on Martha's Vineyard; and America, whose backroads he prowled to set down on canvas what he saw and felt.

"I got in my journeys," Benton said, "a love for my country which I maintain is more real than that of any of the great nationalistic whoopers-up who invariably confuse their monetary interests with patriotism." Both Tom Benton's great loves, in the dry terminology of the obituary, survive: Rita, with her private sorrow; and his country, with its great need for that combination of wisdom and strength which Thomas Hart Benton, American artist, personified.

Oliver Cromwell, a commoner, once ruled England.

Two decisions reflect well on President Ford

WORLD ALMANAC FACTS

Recently, oceanographers revealed that life proceeds at a much slower pace at great depths in the oceans. This study also revealed that garbage dumped in the ocean may readily be consumed by the more active shallow water organisms but much of these wastes may accumulate on the deep ocean floor because deep sea creatures have lower consumption levels. The World Almanac notes.

WASHINGTON — President Ford has just given us his best week of leadership since he assumed the presidency.

He has made economic proposals and cabinet appointments that show two things:

✓ While Ford is regarded as both conservative and stubborn by nature, he did not hesitate to abandon long-held philosophies in the face of potential national calamity.

Rowan

✓ In making two gutsy Cabinet appointments, he has shown a perception of what must be done if we are to restore confidence in this nation's law enforcement machinery, and if we are to free the national bloodstream of the racial poison that was fed into it in recent years.

First, a few words about Mr. Ford's new economic proposals.

There are many possible criticisms.

While the proposed tax cuts for 1975 are allocated fairly on the basis of ability to pay, the rebate plan for 1974 is grossly unfair. It would have the government giving back pennies to the average family while handing a $1,000 rebate to families with incomes of $40,000 and even more.

One hears other complaints that the President's "fireside" delivery was "too contrived," that his hand gestures seemed so rehearsed that they further eroded confidence in Mr. Ford's ability to lead, that his plan to tax oil and raise gasoline and heating fuel prices will spell disaster for "the little guy," and on and on...

Beyond doubt, Congress will find some of these criticisms valid to the point of rejecting what Mr. Ford proposed and enacting other laws. A program of gas rationing may very well be instituted instead of the White House proposal to discourage consumption by raising prices.

Nonetheless, Mr. Ford deserves plaudits for his proposals. He cast off "the old time religion" and advocated a "pump-priming" tax cut that one normally associates with liberal Democrat philosophy. And would you have believed, three months ago, that Jerry Ford would ever propose a "Negative income tax" — that is, that the government actually GIVE some money to those who earned so little they didn't pay taxes?

Mr. Ford is endorsing only what is obviously fair and moral: If you deliberately raise the price of something vital to the well-being of all families (gasoline, heating oil, natural gas) and you say to financially comfortable families that you'll give them a tax cut to balance off the price hikes, then you've got to give balancing cash to families so poor that they have no taxes to cut.

The President has demonstrated to a Congress a bit inclined to play politics that he has more flexibility than most of us thought. Quite properly, he has put the onus on Congress to show that when the nation is in need it can cut out the bull and get down to speedy business.

As for his appointments, I've said enough already about President Ford's wisdom in naming Edward H. Levi to be attorney general. I recently wrote a column on Levi and what he can do toward lifting the Justice Department out of shame after being assured by the White House that the President would not "chicken out" in the face of objections from Senate conservatives like James Eastland, D-Miss., and Roman Hruska, R.-Neb.

It's comforting to see that White House assurances mean something again.

Now — the appointment of William T. Coleman Jr., a black Philadelphia lawyer, to be secretary of transportation. Some whites who are still prisoners of "the backlash" and the phony contretemps over "quotas" may argue that Mr. Ford "named him just because he is black." But that would be a silly assertion, given the abundant evidence that Coleman is a gifted man, abler than the vast majority of people who have held Cabinet posts in the last decade.

Yet, I wish to say that the President must be commended if he did say to himself, "I especially want Coleman because he is black."

Let's face it: symbolism is crucial to the art of governing. "I intend to be President of all the people" is a popular line. But putting that qualified, trusted, respected black person in the Cabinet says it with a lot more conviction than does a mere TV speech cliché.

Coleman's appointment won't erase the woes of blacks who suffer 12.8 per cent unemployment as against 6.4 per cent for whites. Giving a black man control over the vast DOT bureaucracy won't do much immediately for black families that on the average must make do on $58 for every $100 the white family has to spend.

But this appointment will dissipate some of the hopelessness that has been enveloping black America. It says to millions of blacks: "Your problems won't end for a long time. But please know that this country is no longer run by people who have a gut contempt for those who are black, brown, poor or 'different.'"

Yes, it was a rather extraordinary week of presidential leadership by a President who himself had become a symbol of uneasiness and doubt. And leadership, beyond everything else, is what the presidency is all about.

Fireworks reprieve

It now appears that Americans may be able to celebrate another Fourth of July before their government decrees that fireworks are verboten.

The U.S. Product Safety Commission has announced not enough time remains to put the ban into effect this year before Independence Day, considering the expected volume of appeals that would follow such a move.

It was the CPSC, you will recall, that started the anti-fireworks movement last year, voting 4 to 1 to ban all firecrackers and bottle rockets and impose new safety standards on remaining types of pyrotechnics.

Fireworks manufacturers and other citizens concerned about their civil liberties blew their stacks at this, and the CPSC backed off, biding its time until 1975.

Now the earliest the ban could come would be in 1976, just in time to pour cold water on the nation's Bicentennial celebration.

The plot to ban fireworks is part and parcel of what has become one of Washington's latest obsessions — safety. The crusade has given employment to platoons of eager bureaucrats, who are busy jerking toys off shelves, redesigning the tricycle and pursuing countless other exercises in Big Motherism.

It's a good thing the CPSC wasn't around in 1776: it would have banned the shot heard 'round the world.

Thomas Hart Benton

Thomas Hart Benton, Missouri's most famous and distinctive artist, is dead at 85.

Benton, whom one critic called "the last of the Nineteenth Century painters," adhered to his unique regional style, a kind of dream-like realism, while the art world as a whole was transformed by change.

The development of modern, abstract art made Benton something of an anachronism in the eyes of his critics. But this never bothered the artist, whose scorn for most non-representative art was well known.

Benton painted the American past, much of which he had experienced personally in his long career. Speaking of himself and other artists of similar convictions, Benton wrote: "We stood for an art whose forms and meanings would have direct and easily comprehended relevance to the American culture, of which we were by blood and daily life a part."

The public, if not all the critics, responded to Benton's art, which has steadily increased in value over the years. He is now a permanent part of the nation's artistic heritage, and especially so of Missouri's, the state he loved so well.

By JACK ANDERSON with Les Whitten

WASHINGTON — Locked in the Central Intelligence Agency's vaults is another side to the CIA story, which probably will never be told.

The story can be found in the thick, top-secret transcripts of the civilian advisory board, which watches over the CIA.

CIA officials were subjected to intensive questioning, which sometimes lasted a full day. This brought a great many reforms, which the board pressed upon the CIA.

A former chairman, Clark Clifford, told us he was convinced from the sessions that the CIA not only is an effective but an essential organization.

In the nuclear age, he said, the CIA has become our first line of defense. If some agents have been fools, he said, others have been unsung heroes whose deeds surpass the most valorous in our history yet must remain unrecorded.

"The CIA had some dramatic successes," he said. "But the successes must remain concealed or they no longer will be successes."

He singled out for praise undercover men who have been caught and have been subjected to skillfully cruel torture, yet have resisted with uncommon bravery the effort to extort information from them.

Of course, the CIA has also had its blunders. The blunder of all blunders was the Bay of Pigs invasion. The late President Kennedy declared afterwards that he "wanted to splinter the CIA in a thousand pieces and scatter it to the winds."

When he cooled down, Kennedy called in Clark Clifford, who had helped to draft the legislation establishing the CIA. Clifford told us he remembers the late president's words vividly.

"I made some bad decisions on the Bay of Pigs," said Kennedy. "I made these bad decisions because I had bad information.

Merry-go-round

Successes of CIA kept under wraps

My information was bad, because our intelligence was poor. Something is gravely wrong inside the CIA, and I intend to find out what it is. I cannot afford another Bay of Pigs."

The late president often attended the civilian advisory board's secret sessions and helped to fashion the reforms that were imposed upon the CIA.

Footnote: Our CIA sources say the advisory board lost some of its clout after Kennedy's assassination.

The big auto makers are trying to make up some of their sales losses by jacking up the prices of replacement parts because auto owners are repairing their old cars rather than buying new models.

We have had access to a private industry study, which predicts the repair boom will bring in an extra $8 billion by 1980. The motorists' repair bills, according to the study, will soar from $35 billion to $43 billion.

The rush of motorists to repair shops began about four months ago. The shops are now raking in the money at a rate 12 per cent higher than in past years.

The auto manufacturers are trying to squeeze more profit out of the repair business, therefore, by raising prices on captive parts, such as fenders, doors and grills.

Where there is market competition — for such items as spark plugs, light bulbs and batteries — the prices are holding better.

The dealers also charge independent shops more for captive parts than the dealers pay themselves. An intricate rebate system has been designed to benefit the dealers at the expense of their customers.

Pen pals for Koreans

Please forgive me for taking up your valuable time. I'm a teacher of a high school here in Seoul, Korea. My pupils (both boys & girls) are very eager to find pen friends in your country. I am writing to you in the hope that you can help them get in touch with the youth in your country. They would like to exchange information about student life and to discuss current international problems.

I think this kind of direct communication between friends of their same age will help both to learn about each other's country. It will also help my students to brush up their English. I also think they might have fun swapping items in their hobby collections.

I am one of the teachers (English) at school which has around 3,000 pupils. The students' ages are between 11-18. They have five English classes a week.

I am sure they will be a faithful correspondent to any young friends who wish to be their pen friends.

I hope you can perhaps publish my name in your hobby collections.

I thank you very much for your kind cooperation.

Ford fails to rally the nation

By RAY CROMLEY
NEA News Analyst

WASHINGTON — In his running fight against the British, Mohandas Gandhi would journey to the sea to extract a tiny amount of salt from the water.

Cromley

Economically this was insignificant. Politically it was dynamite. Salt manufacture was a British monopoly and Gandhi thus was breaking the Empire's law.

In considerable measure, Gandhi succeeded in his war against England because he knew the value of symbolism and the dramatic gesture, whereby some small act takes on a deep meaning.

In their own way, a series of recent American presidents — whatever their other failings — have understood the political importance of such public deeds.

President Ford does not. Unfortunately, this decent and straightforward man has shown little ability to project faith and confidence in his programs aimed at curing the recession-inflation and at getting us out of the energy shortage in one piece.

In fact, Mr. Ford hasn't been able to convince many that he has a program.

Now this is a pity. For though the recession is real, as attested by the shocking unemployment figures just released, we can climb out of the economic morass we are in only by a change in spirit — by faith if you will.

Mr. Ford is right, I believe, that the government cannot cure the recession. Only we can. The dramatic presidential gesture all too often produces only a cosmetic effect, a 20th century Potemkin village with nothing behind the store fronts. For all his virtuosity, most of President Franklin Roosevelt's economic razzle-dazzle failed of its purpose. There is, in fact, a strong body of economic opinion which holds that his much-publicized economic solutions actually prolonged the depression of the 1930s for years beyond what would have been its normal life.

Mr. Ford, however, is wrong in not realizing we do need some kind of presidential leadership to give us confidence to plan for 1975, 1976, 1977 and beyond.

We need to believe Mr. Ford and his associates see what the problem is. From the confusion at the White House, Treasury, Commerce, Interior and assorted agencies, it is most difficult to believe that an understanding of the reality exists in high places.

Mr. Ford first featured a lengthy series of economic conferences at the White House and in assorted cities, with experts of all persuasions. Little of significance came of these meetings, except patches.

His energy men came out with a document ridiculed for its assumptions and projections by experts in the practical fields.

Testimony by the President's top aides give strong evidence of infighting and serious differences within the administration as to what should be done on energy, inflation, the recession and what the outcome of this plan or that will be. The differences are so great as to crumble our confidence in the economy and in the ability of this administration to deal with what comes — unless we grit our teeth and hold on tight to our inner faith.

What we want from a president, in summary, is a sense of direction, one which projects a certain stability, even if it means blood, sweat and tears. With this as a base, whether we are in full agreement or not, we can go about the business of recovery to the best of our abilities and resources, even if our individual contribution involves no more than driving at 50 miles an hour instead of 60.

Permits for charity drives are favored

By RON JENNINGS
Democrat-Capital Staff Writer

A resolution calling for the City Council to adopt an ordinance making it a misdemeanor to solicit for charity in the city without a permit was unanimously passed Tuesday afternoon by the Sedalia Chamber of Commerce board of directors at their first meeting of the year.

The resolution, proposed by Chamber executive manager Larry Melton, would also require officials of any fundraising drive to complete a form listing the name, location and head of their organization, evidence of its non-profit status, its state tax number, the purpose for the collection, the place where collected funds will be used, names and addresses of all persons to be collecting, copies of all materials to be used in the solicitation and figures showing the amount of money previously collected in Sedalia or evidence of first year organization.

Melton originally suggested that prospective charitable solicitors be required to register at least 30 days before the start of the drive. However, board member Adam Fischer suggested this period be reduced to around five days to avoid possible legal entanglements.

Melton also proposed that exceptions to any registration deadline requirement be permitted in the event of an emergency fund-raising drive to help fire or accident victims.

It was suggested that a standing list be compiled of long-time local charitable organizations, such as The United Way and Children's Therapy Center, which would be exempt from yearly registration.

"This is in no way an attack on any local charitable organization that has operated on the up-and-up," Melton said. "Rather, we feel it's a way of protecting them and also potential contributors to their worthy causes."

Melton indicated he would personally present the proposal at the next council meeting Feb. 3.

Another proposal by Melton that met with unanimous board approval established a procedure by which the Chamber office will deal with written complaints regarding local businesses. Such a procedure is necessary, Melton said, "due to the increasing number of business complaints coming into the Chamber."

Under the new guidelines, the Chamber will act only as a liaison, and not as an arbitrator, between a business and complainants. Before they will be accepted by the Chamber, all written complaints must include identification of both the complainant and business involved, description of the complaint and specific dates of occurrence.

Upon receipt of this information, a copy of the complaint will be mailed to the business involved and a written response encouraged. If fraud is indicated, local law enforcement officials will be contacted. Copies of the written complaint and the response, if received, will be filed in the Chamber office and available only to Chamber members and officers.

The Chamber is a member of the Greater Kansas City Better Business Bureau and, in the past, has presented all verbal complaints on area business to the bureau. That policy will continue, it was indicated.

"The best image of business is the primary concern of the Chamber of Commerce," Melton said. "The Chamber is anxious to maintain a high standard of conduct among its members and to seek to identify fraudulent and disreputable businesses in our area for the protection of the consumer and Chamber members."

The board also discussed its potential involvement in a second ragtime festival this summer and, at Melton's request, deliberated the role that the executive manager would play in its development. Before being hired as the full-time Chamber executive manager, in August Melton served as the coordinator for the Scott Joplin Ragtime Festival held last July. The board was informed that the exact nature of a second festival has not yet been decided by the festival board.

Board members agreed the Chamber's involvement in the past festival was very close and that this relationship should continue in future, similar events.

"This festival created a world of good publicity for this town and if it takes Larry three months of complete work on it, I think it will be three months well spent," Fischer commented.

Agreeing was board member Bill Mills, who said, "I believe the feeling here is that whatever the festival board wants to do will have our support."

Board president Jake Siragusa noted that "if we treat it as a tourist attraction, then it (a ragtime festival) becomes very much a part of the business community. Besides, I don't think Larry will be the type to desert us."

In other action, the board voted to accept its designation as an associate office for the U. S. Department of Commerce. As an associate office, Melton explained, the Chamber is not obligated to pay dues but, instead, serves as a local distribution center for Commerce Department literature.

The board also voted to endorse a resolution calling for state funding of a state overseas trade office operated under the State Division of Commerce and Industrial Development.

Economic Development director John Hequembourg noted that 19 other states currently have such offices and have realized significant results in terms of increased foreign investments. The proposed office staff would include one official representative and one secretary - translator. Hequembourg said.

The annual Chamber banquet will be held at 6:30 p.m. March 20 at Convention Hall, it was announced. Speaker for the event will be Dr. Gerald Fisher, former superintendent of schools at Hot Springs, Ark.

The board also discussed the possibility of sponsoring quarter-horse racing at the Fairgrounds July 4-6 and possibly staging a community-wide picnic and fireworks display July 4 at the Fairgrounds in conjunction with the racing program.

A certificate received jointly recently by the Chamber and the Pettis County University of Missouri Extension Center was displayed at the meeting. The certificate, awarded by Gov. Christopher Bond, recognized the two groups for their cooperation in sponsoring rural-urban dinners and other functions designed to increase cooperation between city and farm citizens. Pettis County Sheriff Emmett Fairfax is chairman of the Chamber Agriculture Committee.

Four new members joining the Chamber since the last meeting are Verl's Amoco Service, Papa Jake's Golden Fluff Donut Shop Number 2, York Electronics and the Mall Beauty Shop.

There were 273 memberships issued to breeders of registered Aberdeen-Angus in the United States during the past month.

Teachers vote no confidence in officials

RIVER FOREST, Ill. (AP) — Teachers at Concordia Teachers College have voted no confidence in the school administration of Dr. Paul Zimmerman.

The vote reflects a widening split within the Lutheran Church-Missouri Synod, which runs the suburban college. Zimmerman is known as a supporter of conservative synod president Dr. J.A.O. Preus.

The faculty senate-voted 21-4 Monday to adopt a resolution charging that Zimmerman's 14 month administration has produced "a tension-filled educational environment," and that it "threatens the quality of education at this college."

The resolution urged Zimmerman to allow faculty and student representatives to attend Board of Control meetings. It also asked him to change measures used to hire and fire teachers at the college recently.

Zimmerman recently announced that six teachers would not have their contracts renewed for the 1975-76 school year. Two of the teachers were reportedly members of the synod's "moderate" faction.

Following an outcry from students, Zimmerman said last week that he would reconsider the dismissal of one of the teachers, Dr. James Mahler.

Blood donation drive date set for LaMonte

(Democrat-Capital Service)

LA MONTE — The Community Betterment Club here will sponsor its third community-wide blood donation drive from 1:30 to 6:30 p.m. Feb. 3 at the Christian Church.

Persons between the ages of 18 and 65 who are in good health may donate blood. Those persons age 17 who wish to donate must show they are doing so with the consent of their parents or guardian.

The Community Blood Center of Greater Kansas City will have its mobile unit in LaMonte for the Feb. 3 effort, it was reported.

Escaped convict may have started night club fire

MONTREAL (AP) — Police investigating the mass murder of 13 people in a Montreal night club think an escaped convict named Richard Blass may have been involved. But apparently they have no concrete evidence pointing to him.

The police are trying to determine if there is any connection between the wholesale killing in the Gargantua Club Monday night and the mob-style killing of two men in the same club last October. They think the killer or killers Monday night might have been eliminating witnesses to the October slaying.

Two men entered the second-floor club over a cleaning shop last Oct. 30, fired 10 shots into Raymond Laurin, 30, and Roger Levesque, 28, and escaped. The police said they suspected Blass and Roger Roussel, who escaped a week earlier from a Montreal penitentiary and who the police said had been confederates of the two murdered men in 1969.

Roussel was recaptured about six weeks ago and is accused of another killing in another Montreal bar a week before Blass is still at large.

The police made this reconstruction of the murders Monday night: The killer or killers shot the manager, Rejean Fortin, 43, in the head, and one of the customers, Pierre Lamarche, 29, in the stomach shortly before midnight. Then they herded the other 11 people in the club into a 6-by-8-foot beer storage closet along with Fortin's body and Lamarche, padlocked the door, barricaded it with a juke box and set fire to the building.

"We think they wanted to get rid of any witnesses," said Asst. Police Director Claude Desautels.

He said Fortin died of his wounds, but Lamarche and the others were asphyxiated.

The other victims included Fortin's wife, Claire, a go-go dancer at the club, 21-year-old Denise Lauze, another woman, and eight men. Most of them were believed to be innocent bystanders who happened to be in the bar at the time.

19-year-old girl points finger

Chiefs, Cards implicated in drug ring

ST. LOUIS (AP) — St. Louis police have withheld comment on a 40-page intra-department memorandum outlining a young woman's allegations that she participated in a ring supplying drugs to players in the National Football League.

A copy of the memorandum was obtained Tuesday by The Associated Press from radio station KMOX. The St. Louis station said it received its copy from a law enforcement official.

Police would only say that the 19-year-old woman "is confined" and declined to further discuss the case.

The report sent to police officials said that Roxie Ann Rice told of her activities while she was being questioned about her alleged use of a credit card stolen from defensive back Ken Houston of the Washington Redskins. Miss Rice was arrested Jan. 4 on fraud charges and was still in jail Tuesday night.

Among the NFL teams mentioned in the report were the Houston Oilers, St. Louis Cardinals, San Diego Chargers, Detroit Lions, Kansas City Chiefs, Cincinnati Bengals and the Redskins.

NFL Executive Director Jim Kensil said only that "there's nothing in what she has said that has been substantiated in any way."

A spokesman for the Cardinals said the team had informed the NFL security division of the report. He denied any knowledge of Miss Rice's activities.

Officials of the Chiefs and Chargers were unavailable for comment. Houston officials said they knew nothing of the allegations and therefore would have no comment, and a spokesman for the Lions said: "We have no comment. We have no idea what it's all about."

Joe Blair, a spokesman for the Redskins, said team officials "don't know anything about it." And he called the allegations "unbelievable, fantastic."

Mike Brown, assistant general manager of the Bengals, said, "This is the first I've heard of it. I wouldn't want to comment on it until I know more about it."

"Football's just like the rest of society," he said. "We've probably got some problems too."

Miss Rice reportedly told officers that she transported briefcases to a number of NFL cities and was met by contacts whom she identified as NFL players. She said that inside the briefcases she found packets with names on them and, on one occasion, was given a bag in which she found marijuana, the report said.

She said she was given false identification and was told to pretend she was a medical student from Ghana, learning about American culture in order to gain access to the players. Miss Rice said she was often introduced to players by a woman who seemed to be known to many.

Miss Rice told police the names of players, when she stayed with them, what kinds of cars they drove and where they lived, the report said.

The report also quoted Miss Rice as telling police that members of some teams told her they were buying drugs for their team. She said she was once asked if she could provide cocaine, but that she told a player all she could offer was pills and marijuana.

Wales Stars win easily

Syl Apps two-goal night earns car, nod as MVP

MONTREAL (AP) — Anne Apps will have a new car soon, courtesy of her husband Syl, who wrote himself into the history books with two goals Tuesday night in the 28th National Hockey League All-Star game.

Apps won the car as his Prince of Wales Conference teammates cruised to a 7-1 victory over the Clarence Campbell Conference in the historically classic but ritually wide-open event.

And among the record crowd of 16,997 at the Montreal Forum were two beaming parents who watched their favorite center overcome pregame nervousness to rise to the top of the league's playing cream.

"I'm awed just to be in the dressing room with these guys," the Pittsburgh Penguins' player said. "I was more worried about making too many mistakes than to even think about scoring two goals."

But score he did, with his former star father looking on proudly.

Apps was a little more than 2½ months old when Syl Apps Sr. scored a goal and an assist in the first official All-Star game played. Tuesday night, the two stood together in the steamy Prince of Wales dressing room.

"I've had a lot of thrills in hockey," said the elder Apps, who scored 201 goals for the Toronto Maple Leafs in a 10-year career, "but this is one of the greatest thrills I've ever had, watching my boy tonight."

"The only advice I ever gave him was to skate hard, hit hard and don't get hurt."

And the 27-year-old prodigy followed those rules perfectly at the Forum, although the hitting — along with the Campbell Conference defense — clearly was missing.

"When they got ahead 3-0, the game was over," said Philadelphia center Bobby Clarke, one of five Flyers on the Campbell roster. "Then we started taking chances, which opened it up even more."

The offensive theory might have worked had it not been for Montreal goalie Ken Dryden, who combined with former Canadiens' netminder Rogatien Vachon for some sparkling saves to blunt further an already dull Campbell offense.

Vachon made 15 of his team's 28 stops in the contest.

Apps still felt the pressure when the game began, but turned nervousness into excitement after 9:38 of play when he deflected a pass from California's Joey Johnston past Philadelphia's Bernie Parent for a 1-0 Prince of Wales lead.

The margin had soared to 4-1 on goals by Buffalo's Don Luce, Toronto's Darryl Sittler and Boston's Phil Esposito before Apps brought the fans to their feet with a goal while falling to the ice at 3:25 of the final period.

That started a three-goal outburst within a 3:54 span against Vancouver's Gary Smith, who played the last half of the game in goal for the Campbell team.

"I'd hate to face a club like that every night," Smith said wearily. "I'd be seeing pucks in my sleep."

Battle on the boards

NHL expansion

New teams may join NHL early

MONTREAL (AP) — Denver and Seattle, scheduled to join the National Hockey League in the 1976-77 season, may enter the league earlier through the purchase of existing franchises, the NHL's president says.

Clarence Campbell, NHL president, said following a two-day meeting of the league's Board of Governors Tuesday night that the entry of the two cities could come about if one or both purchased existing franchises.

He said a meeting of the governors will be held in New York Feb. 1 for further investigation of the subject.

"Both cities have buildings available now," Campbell said. "And I wouldn't be surprised to see them in the league next season."

Karl Meiler wins

BIRMINGHAM, Ala. — Third-seeded Karl Meiler of West Germany scored an easy 6-0, 6-2 victory over Viorel Marcu of Romania in the first round of the Birmingham International Indoor Tennis Tournament.

Campbell said the league could stay at 18 teams if Denver, which has already expressed an interest in purchase of the league-owned California Golden Seals, made such a move.

Although the league president would not designate a club that Seattle could buy, it was learned that the Pittsburgh Penguins franchise, which already has received financial assistance from the league, could be the club involved.

The NHL bought back the Seals franchise from owner Charles O. Finley last season after refusing him permission to move the team out of the San Francisco-Oakland area.

"What we would like to do is keep the thing in balance," Campbell said, noting that it would be unfair for one of the newcomers to start off with an already constructed team while the other would be forced to start from scratch with players picked up in an expansion draft.

After the entry of Seattle and Denver, the NHL was set for further expansion in 1978 and 1980 to bring the total number of teams to 24.

If the two newcomers purchased existing franchises the league could stay at 18, thus bringing no change "for the time being."

"Unless there is some drastic change, we have to be very careful about expanding under the adverse economic situation of today," Campbell added. "We have to work toward a solution of the problem as soon as possible."

Seaver inks $150,000 contract with the Mets

NEW YORK (AP) — Tom Seaver thinks he now knows what caused all of his problems last season.

"It was a simple thing ... mechanical really," said Seaver after signing his 1975 contract with the New York Mets.

The trouble, said Seaver, was on his pitching follow-through. "I was jamming my heel instead of landing on the ball of my foot," he explained.

That, according to Seaver, caused a constant jarring of his spine and eventually led to the sciatic nerve condition in his left hip that bothered him all season long.

Seaver struggled to an 11-11 season with a bloated 3.20 earned run average and paid the price when he signed for 1975. He confirmed a good-sized cut from last year's $170,000, probably down to $150,000.

"I expected it," said the Mets' ace right-hander. "The club has always been good and honest with me, as I feel I've been with them. They paid a good amount last year and I certainly don't feel I pitched to that amount. I felt a cut was in order."

Seaver feels that his 1974 problems started in spring training.

"I had finished 1973 with a tender shoulder and I was overprotective of my arm in camp. I was lazy with my mechanics," he said.

"A lot of pitching is habitual," he said. "It's like riding a bicycle. Once you get rolling, it takes care of itself."

Unfortunately for Seaver and the Mets, he never got rolling in 1974. "When you're pitching well, you have a sense of timing. I never had that last year."

West wins first WHA All-Star contest, 6-4

EDMONTON (AP) — Gordie Howe told everybody the third annual World Hockey Association All-Star game would be the last of his distinguished career — then he went out to enjoy it.

Scoring a goal and an assist to spark the West to a 6-4 victory, Howe won a standing ovation from a capacity crowd of 15,326 at the Edmonton Coliseum and accepted his teammates' tributes after it was over. The triumph was the West's first after two defeats.

"It's hard to say how much Gordie means to hockey," said center Andre Lacroix, who earned three assists in a brilliant display of puck-handling. "He's the star of every game, just because he's still in it at 46 and because he's the greatest that ever lived."

Howe's goal, one of four in a second-period blitz that gave the West an insurmountable 6-2 margin, came on a half-speed backhand that trickled over the line.

"I was trying to pass into the goalmouth," said Howe. "I knew it was in when Andy Brown (East goaltender) called me lucky."

The goal gave Howe a bit of an extra kick because he played with Andy's father, forward Adam Brown, early in his pro career.

Howe made it clear his last All-Star game was something special. He took his stick home. "Sure, it was fun," he said. "It's nice to wind up with one for the road, but the real highlight was to have the kid score one."

Mark Howe took a flip pass from his father to open scoring in the first period. Forward Mark and defenseman Marty, teammates with the Houston Aeros, gave their father the incentive to come back after a one-year layoff at the age of 44.

Andre Hines, also of Houston, had two goals for the West. Bobby Hull of Winnipeg and Ted Taylor of Houston had the others.

The line of Rejean Houle, Marc Tardif and Serge Bernier handled all the Eastern scoring. Houle, the most valuable player, had two goals and two assists, while Tardif and Bernier had a goal apiece.

The West outshot the East 30-28 in the wide-open, penalty-free contest. Goaltending for both teams was only adequate as at least six goal posts were hit by shots that got behind the goalies.

LaMonte, led in scoring by Bill Hurt and Tom Hughes with 18 and 17 respectively, rode their 25-point outburst in the second quarter.

LaMonte also won the junior varsity contest, 58-50. Bill Taylor and Ben Walter each scored 12 for the winners.

Miller tunes up

Fresh off back-to-back PGA wins at Tucson and Phoenix, Johnny Miller sets his sights on the Bing Crosby Tournament, which will be waged Thursday through Sunday in Pebble Beach, Calif. Jack Nicklaus, who skipped the first two tournaments, is expected to be one of Miller's chief opponents in the 72-hole event.

SFCC into 1st-place tie

Bill Barton said he didn't think the winner of the Greater Kansas City Community College Conference would go through the season undefeated. Well, he's right. Johnson County (Kan.), undefeated in four league outings, suffered its first loss of the GK4C season at the hands of Penn Valley, 74-73. In a near upset, State Fair Community College rode a couple of late steals and a free throw by 6-9 center Stan McNeill for a 68-67 win over Maple Woods. State Fair, which trailed most of the way, tied the game, 67-67, on a field goal by Shelly Brown, who scored after Charles Johnson stole the ball with 1:20 to go. Maple Woods regained possession of the ball with 22 seconds showing and called time out. Brown, a freshman guard from St. Louis, stole the ball back with 12 seconds left, and fed it to Mike Falls. Falls missed the shot, but SFCC got the rebound. McNeill ended up with the ball, but missed his shot, but he was fouled on the play by Jim Fuller. McNeill missed his first try on the two-shot foul, but was successful on the second, and the Roadrunners held on for the one-point win. The win was the fourth in five league outings for the Roadrunners, who move back into a first-place tie in the loop standings with Johnson County, ranked 12th in this week's national JuCo poll.

Bluebirds blow 11-point lead against California

(Democrat-Capital Service) COLE CAMP — The California Pintos overcame an 11-point third quarter deficit to down Cole Camp 62-57, in a non-conference clash Tuesday night. The Pintos got balanced scoring from Ron Schatzer, Howard McHenry and Ron Dunham, who combined for 47 points. Schatzer was high in the game hitting from all over the court and a total of 22 points. The Bluebirds made a comeback of their own in the first half. After a slow start, which saw them trail 11-4, they rallied to knot the score at 15-all by the end of the first quarter. Continuing to pour it on, the Bluebirds, who have lost five of their last seven games, outscored California 19-8 in the second period to take command, 34-23. But the fourth quarter was all California, when the Pintos bombed the Bluebirds 21-8. For Cole Camp, 6-3, Greg Ives and guard Robert Miesner were the big guns with 10 and 12 points respectively.

Lincoln Cards surprise Sacred Heart Gremlins

(Democrat-Capital Service) LINCOLN — Sedalia Sacred Heart took it on the chin three times here Tuesday night against the Lincoln Cardinals. Lincoln, which won its first Kaysinger Conference victory of the season with 46-36 decision, capped off the night with wins in the junior varsity game (45-35), as well as straight set wins in the girls volleyball game, 15-6, 15-8.

The victory gave the Cardinals a 1-2 record in the conference. Sacred Heart dipped to 2-4. The Gremlins are 7-10 overall; Lincoln stands at 8-10.

The game was close in the first half. Lincoln gained a two-point lead in the first quarter, 14-12, and led at the intermission by three, 26-23. Sacred Heart trimmed one point off the Cardinals' lead in the third period, but could only manage five points in the fourth quarter. Lincoln scored 13. Rick Weller of Sacred Heart was the game's leading scorer with 17 points. But Lincoln choked off the Gremlins' other inside threat, Mark Register. Register scored only four points. Rick Rank and Rod Ingram combined for 26 of the Cardinals' markers. Dexter Dixon scored 13 points in the Cardinals' 45-35 win in the junior varsity game. Brad Nicholson had 13 for the Grems. Sacred Heart travels to Smithton Friday night. Smithton is the only undefeated team left in the nine-team conference.

Harding hits 30 for Tigers in 98-87 win

(Democrat-Capital Service) GREEN RIDGE — In a wild non-conference shooting match here Tuesday, Green Ridge held off the Deepwater Demons, 98-87. Kelly Harding, who missed last week's conference showdown with Smithton due to a suspension, hit a season's high of 30 points to lead the Tigers to their seventh win in 14 games. Three other Green Ridge players scored in double figures — Joe Purchase (24), Dean Rupe (22) and Robert Risner (10). Norman Cantrell and Rusty Landes were the top point-getters for Deepwater with 22 apiece. Green Ridge ran away with a 60-24 win in the junior varsity game. Randy Scotten scored 16 for the winners.

Scoring Green Ridge (98) — Kelly Harding 30, Joe Purchase 24, Dean Rupe 22, Robert Risner 10, Danny Cook 8, Larry Crumpley 4. Deepwater (87) — Norman Cantrell 22, Rusty Landes 22, Jim Ed Holt 19, Ken Hills 14, Andy Lasswell 10. Green Ridge 16 26 29 27-98 Deepwater 17 15 27 28-87 led the suit right back. West rose with the queen and shifted to a diamond after East's jack signal. South won with dummy's ace and led the jack of hearts.

South had played rapidly, but East had been thinking right along with South. What was South trying to do? He surely could have pulled trumps before plunking down the jack of hearts, and if he had wanted to set the heart suit up he would have done so by leading a low one, not the jack. So East simply discarded a diamond.

Now South went into a huddle and finally came to the conclusion that East's failure to ruff meant that he held the guarded queen of trumps. South led dummy's nine of spades; took a finesse and lost his slam.

(NEWS/APER ENTERPRISE ASSN.)

The bidding has been: 22

By Oswald & James Jacoby

South was interested in seven after his partner opened the bidding, but settled for six after North showed no kings in response to the Blackwood five notrump.

Then when dummy hit the table South saw that even six was in some jeopardy. There was a sure heart loser and the defenders held four trumps to the queen between them.

An ordinary player would bang down the ace and king of trumps, drop the queen and make the slam, but South was just devious enough to have a plan that might tell him something about the trump distribution.

West had opened the king of hearts so South took his ace and

What do you do now?

A — Just bid two spades. There will almost surely be more bidding.

TODAY'S QUESTION

West continues to three diamonds. Your partner doubles and East bids three hearts. What do you do now?

McGovern: 'right from the start'

WASHINGTON (AP) — More than two years after his overwhelming defeat for the Presidency, Sen. George McGovern is more convinced than ever that he was "right from the start" about the nation's major problems.

And with the United States in its worst economic slump in four decades, the South Dakota Democrat says, "I really believe that the ideas I stood for in 1972 have now arrived as far as the American people are concerned."

In simplest terms, those ideas are a sharp cut in military spending, fundamental tax reform and major public employment programs to guarantee every American a job.

McGovern hopes for action in all three areas by the new, heavily Democratic 94th Congress despite what he feels is an "inadequate program" proposed by President Ford.

Beyond that, he says the Democrats must as a party take an uncompromising stand on major economic and social issues in order to recapture the presidency in 1976.

That was the theme of his recent speech to the party's Kansas City miniconvention, where McGovern received a rousing reception, and of his comments in a relaxed, hour-long interview in his Senate office here last week.

The senator said his relaxed mood these days stems from his decision against another attempt for the presidency.

"Just making a decision not to run for anything gets a great burden off your shoulders," said McGovern, who won a third term by about 15,000 votes last November to climax a six-year stretch marked by two Senate races sandwiched around his four-year effort to win the presidency.

"I don't think that we can beat Ford with somebody who is afraid to take a strong stand on central issues," he said.

"I was both concerned and somewhat discouraged to see a number of Democrats trying to find the center of the road at Kansas City," he went on. "If that's what we're looking for, let's leave Ford in. He's a cautious prudent man."

"The big question is whether we can move with enough force and enough imagination to solve the nation's basic problems."

Noting that Ford had said

"the state of the union is not good" after six years of GOP rule, McGovern said, "I think we're going to go into a major depression unless we adopt bold strategies — perhaps even a second New Deal — to get this country out of its problems."

McGovern noted that Ford's proposal for a tax rebate up to $1,000 bears some resemblance to his own controversial income maintenance plan in which every American would have received $1,000, paid for by higher taxes on upper income persons.

McGovern, repeating his 1972 campaign proposal, said massive federal funds should be channeled into public service, job programs that would include construction of mass transit systems and rebuilding

Pharmacists urge drug substitution

WASHINGTON (AP) — Pharmacists should be allowed to substitute the brand of drug prescribed by a doctor with a cheaper equivalent to save patients money, a panel of the National Academy of Sciences said today.

The new resolution passed unanimously by the Drug Research Board, an advisory body, was a reversal of its position two years ago. The resolution in effect calls for amendment of ant substitution laws in 48 states.

Only Florida and Michigan allow pharmacists to fill prescriptions with less expensive substitutes without getting a doctor's approval.

One panel member, J. Richard Crout, director of the Food and Drug Administration's Bureau of Drugs, abstained from voting.

Most of the members are from universities or government health agencies. Three, however, are from the drug industry.

The Pharmaceutical Manufacturers Association, representing most big U.S. prescription drug makers, has argued that cheaper substitutes do not necessarily work as well in the body although they claim to be the same chemically.

The Drug Research Board concluded, however, that "in the absence of data to the contrary, there is no inherent reason for choosing the more expensive drug product simply because of the familiarity of the physician or pharmacist with the brand name."

The board said reversal of its position was prompted by the realization that amendment of ant substitution laws would not prohibit a doctor from specifying a particular brand.

Association honors Marshall student

MARSHALL — Randy Charles, a junior at R-VII High School, was chosen Outstanding Young Hog Man of Saline County by the Saline County Hog Producers Association here Saturday. He is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Lyonel Charles, Sweet Springs.

PASSENGER CAR TIRE GUARANTEE

Montgomery Ward guarantees each of its passenger car tires for a specified number of miles when used on passenger cars or station wagons, except taxis. If your tire does not give you this mileage because of:

- defects in material or workmanship,
- normal road hazard failure,
- premature tread wearout (2/32 inches or less remaining);

Montgomery Ward will:

1. During the first 10% of guaranteed mileage, replace the tire free.
2. During the remaining guaranteed mileage, replace it for a prorata charge based on mileage used.

Nail punctures repaired free during the entire guaranteed mileage.

For guarantee service and adjustments, return tire to any Montgomery Ward branch with the Guarantee Booklet issued at the time of sale.

Charges after first 10% of guaranteed mileage based on selling price in effect at the time of return at branch to which returned, including federal excise tax.

Passenger tires used on taxicabs, and motor vehicles other than passenger cars are guaranteed on the same basis against defects in materials and workmanship only.
